

Auto Vacuum Aids Anglers

To many the call of the open road also means the call of the open water. The automobile and good roads have brought thousands of beautiful lakes and streams within reach of the vacationist or the week-end. Fishing seasons throughout the country are opening, and these young people were among the first to seek their favorite stream. They carry their own boat, lashed to the top of their Chevrolet, and held securely with a new vacuum-grip holding device actuated by vacuum power from the motor. Note the tube connecting boat rack with motor vacuum.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Whether or not this government will use the navy as an active belligerent in the Battle of the Atlantic is a question that no one but possibly the President can answer. Whatever the eventual decision there are a number of important obstacles in the way of concentrating our fighting ships in the Atlantic of which the most important is the strange Empire of Japan.

For many years the American people have been accustomed to swift change in the status of U.S.-Japanese relations. Both sides have done considerable diplomatic bluffing. Many times alarmists have said that the two nations were standing at the very brink of war. But, so far, nothing much has happened outside of a few minor incidents which were swiftly settled such as the sinking of the "Greyhound" a few days ago.

Now according to a number of responsible correspondents who know the Japanese character and Japanese conditions there is a chance that matters will at last move from the talking point to the shooting point. Here are the principal reasons they use to substantiate that position.

First, Japanese leaders are confident that Germany will win this war and they believe that, therefore, the future of Japan will depend on the future of Hitler's "new order." So they are determined to carry out their Axis commitments to the letter.

Second, they are convinced that this country cannot be frightened or argued out of its present position, a position which says in effect, that if Japan moves into the South Pacific we will use force to stop her. Inasmuch as the Japanese leaders are also convinced that Japan must dominate the lands and great resources of the South Pacific Islands if she is to survive as a first class power they have come to the point of view that eventual war is certain and there is no use in longer trying to prevent it.

Third, working on the assumption that war is inevitable the Japanese strategists feel that this is the time to fight, while the United States has its hands full in the Atlantic and must attempt to dominate two oceans with a one ocean fleet. By 1946 the U. S. will have a formidable two ocean fleet and then, think Japanese naval men, Japan's chances of winning a war would be extremely poor.

Fourth, Japan knows her position is precarious, so long as she must depend for the bulk of essential supplies such as steel and petroleum on the United States. Therefore it is reasoned the thing to do is to strike out and obtain by conquest essential raw materials for herself.

This government is taking Japan plenty seriously. The bulk of our fleet is operating in the Pearl harbor area. The Atlantic fleet is small and its few capital ships are mostly obsolete and slow. Large concentrations of aircraft, particularly Flying Fortresses have been sent to Hawaii and even farther east. Air raid shelters have been built in the Philippines and practice air alarms are set off periodically.

The cool heads in our naval high command do not discount the Japanese fleet. They think our ships are better and our gunnery more effective. We have a definite edge in the quantity and quality of carrier based aircraft. And we have a larger fleet. Even so, the navy men feel, it would be a considerable job to lick Japan and would require all our energies for a considerable time.

It is significant that recent pronouncements of Japanese statesmen have become very blunt. Premier Matsuoka scarcely bothers any more to conceal his dislike for the U. S. and his admiration for the Axis. Germany's successes have stiffened Japanese spines and encouraged Japanese saber rattlers. The result is that the Pacific can accurately be described as a tinder box today.
