21-YEAR OLDS TO REGISTER ON JULY 1ST

Oregon is fully prepared to undertake registration on July 1 of men who have reached the age of 21 since October 16, 1940 when the first Selective Service registration was held. Lt. Col. Elmer V. Wooten state director of selective service stated at Salem this week.

Principal registration centers will be local draft board offices throughout the state, Col. Wooten said, but due to the large area under the jurisdiction of many Oregon boards it will be necessary to establish supplemental registration places at strategic points. It is not contemplated however, that a registration place will be established in each voting precinct as was done during the registration in October.

Pending receipt of final instructions from national headquarters of selective service the Oregon headquarters is planning to name chief registrars to be located at each local board headquarters and assistant registrars at such places as may be necessary to prevent prospective registrants from traveling excessive distances for the purpose of registering.

It is estimated the actual number of registrants who might be added to the selective service lists in Oregon on July 1 should approximate 10,000. At the present time there are 135,000 on the selective service rolls in the state.

Difficulty in estimating the July 1 registration is heightened by the fact that many of the young men who have become 21 years of age since last October may have already enlisted in the armed forces.

Full details of the registration on July 1 will be made public at an early date Col. Wooten announced.

Summer Conditions Prevail at Hood

Summer conditions in the high mountains of Oregon are almost a month ahead of normal this year according to reports of forest service at Timberline lodge.

Many trails in the vicinity of the lodge are already clear of snow and district ranger Harold Engles expects that his crew will have the entire south portion of the 6000-foot high trail around Mt. Hood open to horseback riders within ten days. The 36-mile trail usually is blocked by snow drifts until mid-July.

Timberline's string of saddle horses has been brought up from winter quarters and wrangler Austin Stengland has started daily conducting riding trips to points of interest according to Fred Van Dyke manager of the lodge. Stengland assisted by several cowboy guides will also take vacationists on trips varying from two hours to a full day in length and is also planning special two and three day trips around the mountain later in the season.

For younger guests the lodge is providing saddle burros and a special children's guide. The long-eared creatures are famous for their surefootedness and when not ridden by the youngsters they will occasionally be used as pack animals for overnight trips.

Thru cooperation of Warm Springs Indian reservation officials the Timberline gift shops will carry an unusual line of early American handcraft this summer. Students at the Indian school are being encouraged to continue the beadwork and leather craft of their ancestors with the Timberline shop assuring them of an outlet for their products.

The Mt. Hood hood chair lift which carries tourists to the most famous lookout points in the state, 7000 foot high Silcox hut will operate all summer starting at 11 a. m. and running until late in the evening. Sunset and moonlight rides are most popular with summer visitors who pronounce this America's most scenic ariel tramway.

Mech Activity at Blue Lake

Blue Lake Park.—Baseball and softball fans were treated to 11 action filled games last week as the Inter-City league baseballers and the East Multnomah county softballers went into the final stretch of their circuit race which found Blue Lake park still in a tie with Marine Electric of Portland in the Inter-City battle and Wimpy's Team of Orient leading the six softball nines as the first half neared its finish.

Blue Lake baseballers showed the bleacherites they had plenty in the bag for their crucial contest with Marine Electric by trouncing Bridal Veil Sunday afternoon on the park diamond by a 14 to 3 count behind the six hit pitching of Bob Kiessel. Douglas held forth behind the plate to make up Blue Lakes battery for this game.

Gresham Junior American Legion kids won their first practice game on the park diamond Sunday evening when they won over the highly touted Union Avenue merchants by a 2 to 0 count in a seven inning affair which saw Alan Townsend strike out ten batters during his four innings or the mound replacing pitcher Woodfill. Good Crowds Attend Saturday Night Dance

The first Saturday night dance saw a good crowd swinging to the snappy tunes of Clyde Brannan's seven piece orchestra. Two nights of dancing, Saturday and Sunday, are listed for the remainder of the summer announced manager N. B. "Nick" Welch.

Major picnic gatherings next week will be the annual Gresham American Legion pool and auxiliary get-together when youths who have reached or are nearing their 21st birthday will be honored. Cleve Bunn chairman for this organization is in charge of this affair.

Blue Lake Park.—"Oscar" baby Alaskan seal died from lead poisoning last week after a case of pneumonia set in. Seems that some youngsters gave him a forced swim which isn't advised for baby seals. Because no cure was in sight lil' Oscar was put out of his misery.
