Oregon and Washington fruit growers have been meeting with a shortage in refrigerator cars by improving the refrigeration so more fruit can be shipped in a single car. One method is to use dry ice, found particularly valuable in shipping cherries. Pear shippers by precooling the fruit are able to load nearly half again as many pears in a car as is possible otherwise.

Prepare Now for Machinery Lack is Farm Advice

Faced with a possible shortage of farm machinery for next year and inability to get prompt delivery of repairs Oregon farmers are being advised by Robert Taylor of Adams, chairman of the state USDA agricultural defense board to make plans now to foresee their 1942 equipment requirements.

The days when a grower can rush to town and buy a new piece of equipment or even get the right replacement part at a moment's notice are probably over for the duration of the emergency says Taylor. On the other hand the government is making every effort to see that needed farm equipment repairs are provided as promptly as possible through priorities.

The equipment survey reported by county USDA officials shows that Oregon farmers need more than 100,000 pieces of farm machinery because of the farm program and the increased production of "food for freedom."
