School Notes

ROOM ONE-1
Teacher, Mrs. Ball
We had hoped to finish our second pre-primer before Thanksgiving, but the "cold" vacation ended our hopes. We'll be thankful after Thanksgiving when we finish it.

A new boy came to our room from Sandy. Linda Lacey moved away. There are 24 in our family now.

We are counting our blessings in remembrance of Thanksgiving and we find we have much besides food, shelter and clothing for which we are grateful. Happy Holidays to you all.

ROOM TWO-3
Mrs. McCombs, teacher
Our room is decorated with November calendars and flags. The science class is collecting seeds and feathers.

With several people absent we find it hard to practice for our part in the program to be given for assembly on the 23rd.

The "Happy Times" reading class is starting to read in a new book.

ROOM THREE-2
Teacher, Mrs. Teeters
Believe it or not we were happy to return to school after our unexpected holidays.

We have been interested in learning about how the pilgrims really lived and worked. They didn't build log cabins. They built sapling huts, round in shape and thatched with bark. The Swedish people made the first log houses in America.

Max Klaetsch treated us all to a wonderful surprise party. He knew about it but we didn't. We had cake, ice cream, punch and candy. It was Max's eighth birthday.

We are all looking forward to being thankful for some nicer dinners than the pilgrims had. The turkey and venison sound good but those cakes and pies weren't as nice as Mother's.

ROOM FOUR-3
Mrs. Utt, teacher
We have a new boy in our room, John Kelly, who is from Wyoming, but more recently from Ariel, Wn.

We are about to master subtraction, learning to carry back or borrow, then check the answers.

We will start working with clay this week. The pieces will be dried, fired in the school kiln, glazed, then fired again.

We are studying about the Puritans and Pilgrims who landed in New England.

The little vacation was pleasant, but most of the pupils are glad to be back in school.

NEWS from FIVE-2
Teacher, Mrs. Aycock
We have been taking achievement tests. We are wondering how we did in them.

Jackie Johnson has just returned after an absence of several weeks. In Language we are telling stories of American Folk tales. Some of these stories are about Paul Bunyon and The Blue Ox, and others are about Brer Rabbit.

ROOM SIX-3
Teacher, Miss Campynol
This morning, Monday, we challenged Mr. Jones' room to a spelling bee and we won. Donna Kitching was the last person up. We're also learning the parts of speech, so that we can diagram sentences.

In Arithmetic last week, we reviewed fractions by cutting "pies" into pieces, then adding and subtracting them.

We're visiting Colombia, South America by way of our Social Studies books, and in Art we are making 3-D turkeys for Thanksgiving decoration.

SEVEN-3
Teacher, Mrs. Stone
Of interest to our room at this time of Thanksgiving is the task of decorating the cafeteria. Those on the committee are Claudia Forrester, Woody Moss, Joan Looney, Margaret Miller and Sarah Jane Lightner.

The main parts of the body hold our interest in health. Individual study of the different cities of Italy is making us appreciate the arts and the history of a country that offers a great culture.

Decimals, adverbs, and conjunctions, occupy arithmetic and language periods.

Art has us figure sketching and Reading has us increasing our vocabulary, especially our speed and comprehension.

We hope everyone likes our decorating job in the cafeteria.

EIGHT-1
Mrs. Beckgren, teacher
"Remembering to open doors for your date" is a manner on dating that we are studying in health. How well these manners will be remembered will tell in the years to come.

Memorizing different parts of the Constitution occupies social studies time, whereas decimals hold the floor in Arithmetic.

The "Balance of Life" is the main topic of science. Will we ever be rid of the parts of speech which seem to cling throughout our years of education?

Literature has us noting national and world news. It is easy to overlook news that does not concern us.

This week we lost Frances Henrich who has moved to Bend.

has been going along nicely. Virgil Nelson has done the big job of putting on the ceiling blocks in the entire building. Carl Ronnow installed the furnace and Jess Whisler has spent many hours doing all kinds of work; also Tony Buhlinger, Lloyd Potter, Stewart Woods, Sam Olmstead and others have contributed work.

Paul Shogren donated a sign for the Church before he left Springwater. The men will erect it sometime in the future.
