Plant Of Peace And Plenty Produces New Deadly Weapon

A deadly military vehicle and machines of peace and plenty are being built at the La Porte, Indiana, plant of Allis-Chalmers. The plant is noted for the manufacture of harvesting equipment that aids farmers in the production of grain, meat, and dairy products. The deadly vehicle is "Ontos," from the Greek word "thing,"—a highly maneuverable machine with more firepower than any other land combat vehicle in history. Above is the first production model, forerunner of several hundred ordered by the U. S. Marine Corps. It is a hit-and-run weapon, depending on its low silhouette, maneuverability, and speed in training its six 100-millimeter recoilless rifles on a target for deadliness as well as evasion of enemy fire.

Tea For Two Look-Alikes

There is no time like childhood to start learning the essentials of life, and home making is certainly an essential. A vital part of home making is good cooking, of course, and an exciting and safe way to learn to cook is to do it with mother's guidance and direction. What makes it doubly exciting for a child is when a reputable old-line manufacturer of cooking utensils brings out a line of miniatures that are not only safe and sound, but handsome additions to anyone's kitchen, too. The copper-clad stainless steel pieces above are replicas of the real Revere Ware, which is not surprising since they are made by that manufacturer in sets of three, five and seven.
