

New Hearing Comfort—Baby Can't Grab Cord

For the first time the hard-of-hearing can wear an advanced modern hearing aid with no attachments in the ear itself. New Maico Bone Conduction Hearing Glasses recently introduced conceal a tiny hearing aid in the slenderized bows of ordinary eyeglasses, and needs no wires or tubes into the ear. No dangling cord or ear-buttons attract the attention of others or interfere with normal business, family and sports activities. A free booklet containing further information may be obtained by writing to the Maico Company, Minneapolis 3, Minnesota.

23 PERCENT STUDENTS TAKE ENGINEERING

About one out of every four students attending Oregon State college this year is enrolled in the school of engineering, a registration total breakdown shows.

The school of engineering had 1557 of the 6791 students enrolled fall term, or about 23 percent. Long the largest school at OSC, engineering has 15 percent more students this year than last.

Second largest school on the college campus this year is science with 938 students. Business and technology third with 928 students, followed by education with 875; agriculture 818; lower division of liberal arts 609; home economics 492; forestry 328 and pharmacy 268.

INSURANCE RATES TO BE INCREASED ON AUTOS

The Oregon Insurance Department has approved increases in private passenger automobile insurance rates effective January 1, 1957.

A thorough review of the experience of insurance companies writing this type of insurance by the Insurance Department revealed that rate increases are necessary at this time. The increase in the number and severity of automobile accidents, together with the cost of medical care and automobile repair, has a direct effect upon the cost of automobile insurance and the rates which the insurance companies must charge for their policies.

"During the past fiscal year there were 127,458 registered motor vehicles involved in accidents in the State of Oregon. This represents approximately a twenty percent increase over the previous fiscal year and is largely responsible for the average 15 percent increase in automobile insurance rates. One out of every six motor vehicles in the State of Oregon was involved in an accident during the past fiscal year and because of this experience the rate increases could not be denied."

"People who are living beyond their income should be given acting their wage."

MAN SERVES 6 YEARS FOR LIVESTOCK THEFT

After almost two years of investigation by the state department of agriculture and state police, an Oregon man was recently sentenced to six years in the state penitentiary for larceny of livestock.

The case began in January, 1955 when Guy Woodworth, livestock theft investigator for the department, was called by state police to investigate the suspected theft and slaughter of a heifer near Dufur. The crime allegedly was committed by a resident of The Dalles and his accomplice who was still at large.

Remains of the calf revealed that the owner was Charles Kennedy of Willowsdale. Contacts with Kennedy verified ownership of the animal and that it had been stolen. The Dalles resident involved in the theft was arrested on a livestock larceny charge March 23, 1956. The accused was lodged in Jefferson county jail with bail set at $2500. Jury trial in Madras on June 11 found him not guilty.

His accomplice was arrested in Pine City, Minnesota, on Nov. 4, 1956, on a Jefferson county, Oregon, warrant charging larceny of livestock. On December 11 he pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to six years in the Oregon penitentiary.

Not all suspected cases of livestock theft result in arrest, as shown by reports of the state livestock theft investigators. In 1956 these men investigated 73 cases of livestock theft which resulted in 17 arrests. This was just a small portion of the total investigations by these department men in 1956.

State livestock theft investigators also made 437 road checks last year to assure that livestock moving over Oregon highways was in possession of the legal owners. Many of these road checks were made in deer and elk areas. As a result of hunters being aware that the department men were present, greater efforts were made to avoid shooting livestock. Following in Madras on September directly prevented the theft of 10 heifers, according to one livestock owner in the area.

Garfield News

Garfield Grange has had quite a face lifting the past two weeks. Ed. Lee, John Parvin and Ken Palmateer sanded the walls and the painting crew took over. Some remodeling was done by Wm. Chrysler, Pete Ballou, and Lora Palmateer. The painters were those who remodeled and Elmer and Rena Davis, Gena Ballou, Joe Janssens and Leila Gordon. There is still a lot to do as we hope to paint the dining room, kitchen and halls before our visitation there March 14.

Louie Leonhardt of Longmont, Col. visited the Grange Saturday and sat at the birthday table. He said he came over 2000 miles to celebrate with his old friends who were happy to have him.

Those from Garfield Grange attending the dinner at the Legion hall on Sunday honoring their member Louie Leonhardt were Gena Ballou, the Ted Dernoveks, and the Gordons. Louie is staying with his friends the Leslie Randalls while in Oregon.

The Garfield Dorcas Society has postponed their meeting until Jan. 24. The hostess Peggy Anders hurt her back but hopes to be able to have the meeting at that time.

We hope a good number of Garfield Grange members will attend Pomona Jan. 26 at Damascus. As our youth team will install the officers and our master Pete Ballou will be installed as Pomona Youth Chairman. Installation at 10 A.M. The Grange Youth team will install Eagle Creek Jan. 19 at 8 P.M.

On Skywatch Monday were Gena Ballou 6 hr., L. Gordon, v hr. Gena needs volunteers as she takes a shift every Mon. that Garfield has day time shifts.

Floyd Beebe has returned home from the hospital but will go back Fri. the 18th. The Dr. will transplant a ligament from his toe to his finger. He will be in the hospital a week. His hand is doing nicely!

The Wm. Reimers and the Dewey Qualls are receiving their baby chicks this week.

The Garfield Grange Home Ec. will meet at the hall Jan. 22 at 7:30 P.M. All sisters of the Grange are invited. The new H. E. chairman Norma Lee hopes for a lot of cooperation. Year books will be made as soon as possible.

The officers of Garfield Grange will attend an officers' meeting at Warner Jan. 28. Pete hopes all officers will be there as they receive much good from these meetings.

A bus will be available for our visitation at Holcomb Outlook Feb. 9. More about it next week.

There is no more rewarding occupation for a girl than that of a nurse. It is a career that puts her into the world of fascinating people, brings endless drama, perpetual financial security—and best of all—brings the reward of being useful to others.

Nurses can choose among absorbing specialties. They can concentrate on work with children in obstetrics or pediatrics, qualify as a surgical nurse, learn the interesting new techniques of orthopedics, or the new field of psychiatry where the need for trained nurses is great.

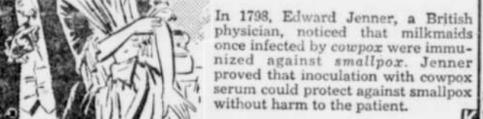

Today we have 390,000 registered nurses. We need 50,000 more and the need grows every day. For additional information about a nursing career for your child write: New York Life Insurance Company, Dept. CF, 51 Madison Avenue, New York City. Ask for booklet, "Do You Want To Be A Nurse?" by Ruth Sleeper of the National League for Nursing. It's full of information on careers in nursing.

Milestones in Medicine by Marquerite Clark

In 1889, Dr. Charles Brown-Sequard of Paris was so successful in rejuvenating himself with glandular extracts that he contracted the childhood disease of whooping cough at the age of 72. The French doctor's gland experiments were spurned by conservative scientists. Yet from this and other old-age research grew world-wide interest in geriatrics, the health of old people.

In 1926, Dr. Grafton R. Minot of Boston found that a liver diet would control pernicious anemia. But the patient had to eat at least half a pound of liver daily. Two years later, Dr. Minot developed the first liver extract which cut the daily dose to 5 grams. Now, under a physician's advice, a small injection will keep the pernicious anemia patient in good health.

In 1798, Edward Jenner, a British physician, noticed that milkmaids once infected by cowpox were immunized against smallpox. Jenner proved that inoculation with cowpox serum could protect against smallpox without harm to the patient.

JERRY REHBEIN WINS SUB NOVICE BELT

Jerry Rehbein, speedy slugger from Estacada out punched Coos Bay fighter Billy Ray to win the sub novice AAV tournament in Portland Saturday night. Rehbein landed a series of hard punches to the midsection of the Coos Bay fighter who was unable to continue after the first round. Rehbein also received many compliments and was listed as the sharpest fighter in the tournament. Jerry Clark also of Estacada won his fight by a K. O. in 55 seconds of the first round, but was defeated on a split-decision in the semi-finals. With more training Clark could do well.

Viola Happenings

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tracy have returned from an extended vacation through the southwestern states and Mexico.

Clarence Cross accompanied them as far as Denver, Col. where they spent Christmas with his family. After Christmas he flew home by plane.

Mr. and Mrs. Leavern Riedel are the proud owners of a new Chev. pickup.

There will be a general church meeting at the Viola Community Church on Friday, Jan. 25 at 7:30 P. M. The church board has the by-laws and constitution to present to the congregation at this time. Also a copy of the charter members will be drawn up at this time, which will be framed and hung in the church. Rev. Renaud has purchased the church and all the papers are duly recorded.

RIDING CLUB NEWS

The first yearly meeting of the Cascade Riders was held at Viola Wednesday eve. at their clubhouse.

The final plans were laid for the Winter Dance to be held at the Redland Grange hall Sat. Jan. 19. Jimmy Clinton and his band will furnish the music.

In addition to the regular club meeting a 16 mm sound picture from Oregon State College on the Gaits of Horses was shown. This was a very outstanding film and has been acclaimed as the most educational ever to be released on this subject. Also a 16mm sound movie of the U. S. Cavalry training the jumping horses for the Olympics.

More plans were made for the first annual Horse Auction of the Cascade Riders on April 14. Anyone having horses, saddles or equipment for consignment or wanting information write Cascade Riders, Rt. 2, box 126, Estacada.
