NOTES BY THE WAYSIDE

(By J. J. Inskeep, Extension Extension Agent)

Many out of state visitors are expected to attend the Oregon Holly Growers Association's annual tour set for Saturday, August 3. Alfred Teufel, Cornell Road, Portland, President of the Oregon Association says he expects visitors from California, Washington, British Columbia, at least two from New Jersey and one from Pennsylvania. The New Jersey visitors include C. R. Wolf, President of the Holly Society of America and Dan Fenton, holly expert and manager of the Wolf Orchards at Millville, N. J.

The holly growers tour this year will include two stops in Clackamas County only. Tourists will gather at the Brownell and his wife, Helen, will serve coffee and register members and visitors.

Inspection of the Brownell nursery and Arboretum will follow. The Brownell collection includes specimens of many species and varieties of holly gathered from the four corners of the globe.

The group will enjoy a no host picnic at Willis Park, Carver, at noon with lemonade served by the Brownells.

Afternoon activities include a visit to the Oregon Holly Co. orchard, one mile west of the Highland store and across the road from the now abandoned Highland School. Here the group will see many items of interest. This mature French-English which, until now, has never set a crop of berries. Effectiveness of the use of male trees will be shown. Visitors will enjoy and actual budding demonstration and results from past budding and grafting.

Weed and grass spray control plots will also be ready for inspection. Amino triazole with and without sticker spreader has been tried on Canada thistle. Dalapon has been tried as control for various grasses as a substitute for cultivation around both mature and newly planted trees. Effect of these sprays on foliage will be noted.

Mrs. Hazel Ping, Stafford, secretary of the association, announces that this tour is in no manner restricted to association membership. Everyone interested in holly invited. Visitors are advised to bring a lunch and to wear stout footwear suitable for wearing in dusty orchards.

Last week we had something to say about the use of bees in red, white and alsike clover fields. Bees are also effective in pollination of crimson clover, lotus, strawberry clover, sweet clover and vetches.

To illustrate the point in former trials from 100 heads of red clover with bees excluded there were no seeds whatever, but 4,446 seeds where bees had access to the clover. Ladino clover—100 heads had 365 seeds with bees excluded but 13,946 where bees had access to the blossoms. 100 heads of crimson clover produced 508 seeds without bees and 6,917 seeds when bees had access to the blossoms. 100 heads of alsike clover produced 40 seeds without bees; 12,621 seeds with bees. These figures give one an idea of the importance of bees in raising these crops.

This information was included in Circular of Information 554 issued by the Oregon Experiment Station. Its title "Bees for Legume Seed Production." Copies may be had at the County Extension Office at Oregon City upon request.

FIRES CAUSED BY CARELESS SMOKERS

Careless smokers strat about one-third of Oregon's man-caused forest fires, reports Charles Ross, Oregon State college farm forestry specialist.

In 1955, the latest report year smokers caused 233 of the 729 man-caused forest fires in Oregon. Ross says smokers are traditionally at the top of the forest-fire set list. The holocaust that roared out of the woods to burn up Bandon, Oregon in 1936—killing nine persons—was started by a cigarette.

Smokers are urged to follow three basic rules to prevent forest fires: (1) Use the car ash tray. It is unlawful to throw cigarettes, cigars, pipe heels, and matches from car windows. (2) Watch woods smoking. Never drop lighted materials along forest trails or streams. (3) Break matches in half. Be sure the match is out before you throw it away.

Neglected or abandoned campfires ranked second in man-caused fires in Oregon forests in 1955, accounting for 124 fires. Next on the list was logging with 81 fires.

Burning of debris caused 75 forest fires. Railroads accounted for 32 forest fires. Nineteen forest fires resulted from intentional setting of fires. Of 729 fires last year, 165 were unclassified or listed under miscellaneous causes.

There are, of course, a large number of lightning fires which cannot be prevented, Ross explains.

MOTORISTS TO BE QUESTIONED ON SPEED

Motorists may be stopped on some sections of Oregon's highways—and even if speeding—asked a few polite questions by a traffic interviewer and then sent on their way as the result of a meeting Wednesday between State Highway department officials and Charles W. Prisk, Highway Safety Study Director for the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Actual speed checks and interviews on selected sections of highway will be part of a comprehensive highway safety study being conducted by the Bureau of Public Roads to determine the effect of speed upon accident rates and upon injury and fatality rates.

"When an airliner crashes, thousands of dollars may be spent in investigating the cause," Prisk said, "but although traffic accidents take countless more lives every day this is the first attempt to scientifically investigate the importance and extent of speed as a factor in traffic accidents."

While it is commonly accepted that speed is an important factor in traffic accident rates, the extent of its importance is controversial even among traffic experts. One result of this lack of agreement is a wide variety of speed zones and speed limits across the country.

In addition to the speed checks on selected highway sections, the accident records for the same sections will be analyzed.

Selection of Oregon as one of ten states to take part in the study was based upon the accuracy and availability of traffic accident data and because of the fact that Oregon operates under the basic speed rule which indicates a different approach to the speed problem than that taken by many other states.

TENTATIVE HUNTING REGULATIONS SET

A shorter either sex deer season than last year would be in store for hunters if the tentative hunting regulations adopted by the game commission are given final approval at a second public hearing.

CHURCH OF GOD ACTIVITIES

By Mrs. DeLoris Strange
There were 18 members and friends of the Estacada Church of God who attended the camp meeting last Sunday at the Nazarene camp grounds in Clackamas. Three from here who sang in the choir were Miss Elva Kneken, Miss Carol Sorrels and Miss Corrine Palmateer. Miss Palmateer is attending the camp meeting.

Garden Club Set for Monday Picnic

The Estacada Garden Club will hold their annual Potluck Picnic at the home of Ann Underwood next Monday, August 5 at 11:30 A. M. with Ann Underwood, Lena Underwood, and Elizabeth Ames as hostesses. Each member will bring her potluck dish and the hostesses will furnish coffee, tea, and rolls.

The members are asked to make a flower hat for the meeting. Our Conservation Chairman, Clara Coffield, has asked each lady to bring a twig or small branch from a tree or native shrub growing in her yard.

We are also asked to bring small arrangements and horticulture to the meeting. The program will be the planting and dividing of peonies by Abbie Armstrong.

Fortune From A Shoestring Now Impossible

Shoe Latch For Shoes Marks End Of Shoestring

The answer is simple. Shoe strings are on their way out.

A new shoe latch which firmly attaches a shoe by pressing on a strap is rapidly replacing it in styles for men and boys of all ages. A shoe latch has nothing to thread; nothing to align; it is simply pressed down to close and is completely adjustable to foot comfort. It will last for years. When fastened the latch is covered with a leather band making it very good looking and permitting many different style applications.

The Executive Committee of the Estacada Parent - Teacher Association met Tuesday, July 30, to set a meeting date for the PTA for the coming school year. The second Thursday in each month was agreed upon, making the first meeting fall on September 12 at 8 P. M. This will be a reception for 'get acquainted' teachers. At this meeting date will be voted on and by laws changed accordingly.

LITTLE AND THEY BRING NEWS AND AD. COST IS

"SUMMER CHAMPAGNE"

It's not often that a truly new summer beverage makes a bow, but here's a real debut: Rhubarb Cooler. Fruit-flavored and tart, this nectar-like creation will not only quench thirst—but sparkle conversation as it sparkles in the glass. Lots of people are calling it "summer champagne."

As it trickles pleasantly down your parched throat, singing of shady groves and cool green gardens, it actually suggests the spirited tang of champagne. Topped with a sprig of mint, it's as eye refreshing as it is taste-pleasing.

The Rhubarb Cooler is the inspired suggestion of the RealLemon folks, bottlers of reconstituted lemon juice that is uniform in strength and flavor, requires no squeezing or straining. You simply pour it!

RHUBARB COOLER
1 1/2 lbs. rhubarb
1 qt. water
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup RealLemon Dash salt
1 1/4 qts. ginger ale
1/4 cup orange juice
Wash rhubarb and cut into small pieces. Cover with water in a saucepan and cook until soft. Strain through double thickness of cheese cloth. Add sugar and stir until dissolved. Bring mixture to boiling point, add orange juice, RealLemon and salt. Chill and combine with ginger ale. Pour over ice cubes and serve. (Makes about 8 quarts.)

WANT TO SELL IT, TRY A HOME THE BACON

Mr. and Mrs. Hersel York and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Horner spent a very pleasant evening last Saturday when they drove to Welsh's Golf Course for dinner. Mrs. Horner reports that the food is wonderful and the surroundings attractive.
