YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY
By James Piazza
Q: Should I bring a record of all wages I've received when I call at the social security office to file for my benefits?
A: The only record the social security office will need will be for 1957. Our records are not yet complete for that year; so it will help if you bring the W-2 forms given you by your employers for 1957.
This will often save considerable time in the payment of your first benefit check.

Q: My wife has worked under Social Security for many years. When she becomes 65 and retires, will she draw benefits as my wife or as a retired worker?
A: When she retires, either at age 65 or 62, she will receive any benefit to which she may be entitled based on her own earnings. If the wife's benefit is higher than her own, she will receive an additional amount covering the difference between the two. She will receive only her own benefit if that is the higher of the two.
Q: Does the income I earn during the period prior to filing for benefits count toward the $1200, or is that the amount I can earn from date of filing until the end of the year?
A: For Social Security purposes, the total amount of your earnings for the year are counted. For example, if you earn $900 from Jan. through July, you can earn only $300 more for the year and receive all checks. There is no distinction made as to earnings prior to filing or after filing. Your earnings for the entire year are counted.
NOTICE: Our deadline for news and advertising is Tuesday night. We cannot guarantee publication if material is received later than Tuesday night. Thanks for your consideration and cooperation
