

Grange Will Improve Park

By Anne Justice
Springwater Grange members met Aug. 9 with a larger group than usual attending. The chairman of the agricultural committee, Everett Shibley, described a spray being used to ripen grain and fescue grasses. Margaret Shibley read an article from the Oregon Farmer telling how to propagate shrubs and divide iris roots. Bernice Miller reported she picked ripe tomatoes from the experimental plants from Oregon State College; the fruit being well shaped and of good flavor. James Martin of the legislative committee told of a proposed increase in social security payments. Vernita Gant, Theda Tucker, and Bertha Gentemann went to Portland and Milwaukie recently to purchase drapery material for the main hall and the Juvenile grange room. Members of the Home Economics Club will meet at a future date to make the drapes and put them up. Mary Varitz of the health and safety committee also used the Oregon Farmer as a source for material on health, reading the story of the crusade against polio and quoting from the article, "Take A Break" recommending that farmers rest oftener and perhaps have a light lunch while resting. Warm weather poisoning of food was warned against, and some safe methods for carrying picnic food described. The Juvenile Grange had a swimming party and weller roast during the afternoon at the Shibley picnic grounds on Clear Creek. The committee for community service has posts cut for their project of roadside signs, and expect to get them painted soon. The fire truck committee plans an meeting in the near future. Communications from R. B. Poppino, Tillicum grange, Ben Buisman and the Clackamas Co. Court were read. The Court replied to a letter from Springwater Grange requesting improvements at Metzler Memorial Park saying they would be pleased to grant permission to build a second fireplace and some additional tables for the park. The reservoir and provide the water for the cottage and the kitchen wired for electric range and water heater. Jean Shibley had the lecturers program and since fair time is at hand stories of unusual experiences at state fairs in past years provided amusement. Everett Shibley told of driving horses to Salem and camping for the fair when e was small. Margaret Shibley described getting out in the early morning while camping at the fair grounds with her family and all of them searching for a neighboring camper's gold teeth lost in the grass as he vigorously brushed his molars. Joe Guttridge told of getting a prize for a pumpkin at the Springwater Community Fair when he was a small boy. George Gentemann had a tedious trip from Kansas City during a snowstorm and remembers the kindness of a train porter who worried because the passengers were getting tired of eating sandwiches. The chaplain reported Erma Tenny, Florence Dmytryk and Anita Horner ill. All present signed cheer cards and also birthday cards for Nancy Tucker and Christine Kulseth. A special invitation to FFA members, 4H clubs and the Forestry Dept. was voted to prepare exhibits for the community fair, which is scheduled for Sept. 20 at the grange hall. Members were warned that the dry weather is ard on wells—and not to try to irrigate gardens to long a time. R.H. Millaro, who irrigates from springs reported growing sweet corn with some stalks having 5 ears on them. Next meeting of the grange will be September 13, opening at 10:30 AM. Social night will be August 22 with potluck supper at 7 P.M.

Visiting Mrs. Currin Sunday eve. Aug. 10th, were Mr. and Mrs. Pete Boichuck from Portland. They were former neighbors before moving to Portland. Mr. Boichuck had to have an operation on his eye which was very successful. Mr. and Mrs. Sim Heiple went to the huckleberry patch last week and came home with a lot of berries.
