

Next Sunday is December 7th. The day and the date have a most familiar sound, for it was just 17 years ago that this nation was blasted out of its isolationist complacency by the attack upon Pearl Harbor. Since that fateful Sunday many changes have occurred in America, the world and in humanity itself.

The surprise attack of the Japanese upon Pearl Harbor was successful largely because Americans both officials and citizens alike, thought such a blow could not be struck so far from an enemy base. Very little provision had been made, despite the growing threat of war, for detection, defense or disaster relief. Since that time America has continued to be slow to recognize that in this day of the jet bomber and the intercontinental missile that a hundred Pearl Harbors could be

The Estacada Garden Club opened their annual Christmas party at the City Hall Monday by singing 'Holy Night.' Hostesses were Abbie Armstrong, Mabel Baker, Veranita Gant and Bertha Gentemann. 30 members and 4 guests were present. Members answered roll call by naming her Secret Flower Pal and handing her a Christmas gift.

Ann Underwood showed the Club some interesting slides she had taken at the Florists show in Portland.

A short business meeting was held. The annual federation show for Clackamas district will be at the Clackamas High School on Dec. 13 and 14. Theme of the show is "Joy to the World." Admission price is 50c.

The annual Christmas sale is to be held in the Legion hall Saturday, Dec. 13 from 9 to 4:30 P. M. Leila Gordon is the chairman and Abbie Armstrong is co-chairman. This week Thursday AM all members who can will meet at Leila Gordon's home to paint, wire and get materials organized so that the committees can have materials with which to work on all the Christmas displays which the Garden Club will sell.

The swags which this club sends to the Veterans hospital will be hung Dec. 19. Wednesday, Dec. 17 starting at 9 AM members will meet at the Legion hall to work on these swags.

The arrangements were judged by Grace Still. Lovely refreshments were served and a nice time had by all.

Garden Club Has Christmas Party Auxiliary Readies Hospital Gifts

The American Legion Auxiliary Ladies met recently and prepared the gifts for the Roseburg and Portland Veterans Gift Shop. Toy pillows, little boys shirts, pillow slips and stuffed toys were finished and packed. The Gift shop is prepared for the veterans in the hospital where they can shop for free for their whole families. The gifts are wrapped and mailed free by Unit members and the Volunteer hospital workers. The Roseburg hospital was open Dec. 1 and the Portland hospital will have open house December 7th, where the general public may view the gifts.

The Auxiliary's Juniors attended the district conference at the SE Hall in Portland, 14 were present and the officers installed were Bonnie Jones, chairman; Linda Courtain, vice chairman; Susan Kiggins, treasurer; Iena Barr, secretary; Ann Snowley, chaplain; Kathy Barr, historian; Linda Fitch, sergeant at arms; Judy Broadhurst was chaplain on the installing team. Mrs. Murray Kiggins, Mrs. Agnes Carpenter, Mrs. Lester Courtain, Mrs. Mary Klinker and Mrs. Adolph Still, chairman, transported the little girls to the meeting. The department president, Mrs. George Dickie, Jr. talked to the girls and told them that their membership was a thing to treasure; that she too had been a Junior and little dreamed that she would one day be Department of Oregon President.

This Person & That

By C. T. E.
Furrow a very interesting publication sponsored by the Hessel Implement Co., a very reliable company of Gresham, has found a stranger who being asked to contribute a dollar for a most worthy cause gave five. But let the Furrow tell the story:

An editor died after a lingering illness. His savings barely covered hospital and doctor bills; leaving nothing for funeral expenses. A friend after soliciting funds all day, lacked only $1 of having enough. Wearily he said to a stranger, "Could you give me a dollar to bury an editor?"

The stranger pulled out a $5 bill and said "Here—bury five of them."

We went into Dr. Price's neat and well equipped office the other day and found it staffed by alert, energetic and good looking assistants. As we left the place a man stopped us and requested that we tell 'Doc's' two stories. We promised if we had to break a leg to do it.

"You have acute appendicitis," "Listen, doctor, I came here to be examined, not admired." "Now, Junior, be a good boy and say Ah so the doctor can get his finger out of your mouth."

It is presumed that the doctor has both stories by this time.

This department met up with him a few days ago. He used to 'make' the Estacada country a few years back and he asked about those two grand guys at Currinsville. We assured him that Henry Heiple and Bob Currin were still 'grand' though somewhat molested with physical difficulties. He asked us to extend a 'God bless you' to both of them, which we are mighty glad to do because both of them are worthy and have it coming.

Somebody asked her what an efficiency expert did and being from Estacada she knew the right answer. "It is a little hard to explain but if we women did it they would call it nagging."

He declared at lodge the other night that winter time was the best. "In the summertime the flies, bees, mosquitoes, gnats, ants, beetles and other multi-legged evils flown into my yard from parts unknown never gave peace nor rest." A brother coming in late yelled: "What about bed bugs?"

It seems strange to go into the Estacada bank and not find Leah Walters Faust about. She was popular with everybody, and did all her work well. She retired to her home among the Walters at Currinsville and has taken up a new job of being mother to her own baby, born a few weeks ago. She don't remember the woman who came into the bank a few weeks ago and said to her: "I want to open an account." "Do you want a savings account or a checking account?" "Neither," replied the woman "I want a charge account like they have at a department store in Portland."

A conundrum going from door to door is 'What was the biggest fuss in Bible history?' While most of us are profound Bible students, all of us did not remember that Adam and Eve raised Cain.

Met Bill in a restaurant the other day. He had just finished a lunch of two sandwiches and 3 pieces of pie. Afraid to call him 'Good Old Bill' for fear his wife would pull out all my hair, Bill is just as handsome as ever. Met a relative of his a few days back. So the fellow said. He had been dog catcher in his home town for 17 years, but for the past five years had an easy time of it. In answer to a query of why that was he replied: "Didn't you hear? I caught the dog."

She said she had been married to Dad all her life and said it was true about him. It is not Dad's day—but here goes. At age 5 he is the greatest man in the world. At 14 he looks like a dollar machine. At 20 he is a good chap but very old fashioned. At 25 son wonders how dad ever got by. At 36 son asks his advice. At 50 he was one grand guy. At 60 "Dad always used to say"—

How Good a Farmer Are You?

Why does one farmer enjoy a good home, fine food and clothing and all the advantages of modern living, while another can hardly earn the bare necessities? Both may be located on similar land and comparable buildings and equipment. Yet one makes money and the other doesn't.

The Agricultural Service Department of Union Bag & Paper Corporation, manufacturers of multiwall paper feed bags, has looked into the matter and comes to this conclusion: Farm management makes the difference! The experiment stations, agricultural colleges and research scientists of feed companies have the facts on which a sound farming program can be based. But not all farmers apply them. Here, for example, are some "management" tips on good poultry raising techniques:

OVERCROWDING. Laying hens should have a minimum of 3 to 4 square feet per bird and 50 to 75 feet or more of roost space per 100 birds.

FRESH AIR. Purdue University recommends you don't close the houses up tight, regardless of outside temperature. Research has proven that birds will be less susceptible to disease and maintain higher production if they have adequate ventilation, even in cold weather.

Good idea, though, to have an automatic water warmer in very cold weather—It will more than pay for itself in increased egg production.

LITTER. Ohio State University recommends that the laying hen's floor should be covered 4 to 6 inches deep with chopped straw, wood shavings, sawdust or similar material. Keep adding to it until it reaches 8 to 12 inches. Then level it off. Add lime at rate of 10 to 15 pounds per 100 square feet, should the litter become too damp. Also stir frequently to prevent caking.

FEEDING. Too many farmers rely on profitless rule of thumb procedures. The manufactured feeds—with their palatable scientific rations containing all the necessary vitamins, minerals and proteins—are cheapest in the long run. And follow the feed manufacturer's directions.

Don't hold back on feed. In general, the more layers eat, the more eggs they will lay. Allow a minimum of 12 linear feet of feed hopper space per 100 layers.

LIGHTING. When days grow shorter, you can aid egg production by providing artificial light. Most poultry specialists advise turning on electric lights several hours before daylight and allow one watt of light for each 4 or 4 square feet of floor space.

Poultry profits are the result of good management. Above are some of the elementary rules every farmer should bear in mind. And keep studying. That's most important.
