This Person & That

By C. T. E.

The bill board is going to be one of the important questions to be settled next year as most people prefer to have some of the scenery left. Ogden Nash comes to the correct conlusion in his parody on Joyce Kilmer's 'Trees.' Nash wound up his poem with: 'indeed unless the bill boards fall, I'll never see a tree at all.'

Lem Jenkins denies that she is his grandmother but she is a nice old woman and everybody likes to see her and hear her talk.She drives her car into Union filling stations and buys a few gallons of gas at a time. When she gets an audience of some sort she always declares: 'It is wonderful how these Union filling stations know exactly where to set up their pumps and get gas.'

They are saying that he is the most bashful boy in George. One day all of a sudden he told his mother he was going courting, much to her astonishment. He was back in half an hour and his mother asked: Did you get to see her?' 'I did, and if I hadn't ducked behind a tree she would have seen me too' he chuckled.

Good deal different from the characters heard over the telephone a few nights ago"Hello, Lulu how about a date tonight?' 'Sure Jim come on over.' But I'm not Jim' And I'm not Lulu. Come anyway."

An Estacada man was considerably riled up a few days ago when he saw a stub in his checkbook which read: 'Pull over .$15' It was in his wife's handwriting, so he confronted her very angrily. 'I am very sorry, she said, but it happened during the Christmas rush in Portland. I got from a man on a motorcycle. I went through a red light and he drove up and said :'Pull over'and I did. He gave me a ticket which cost me $15 down at the police station."

A little girl living in the north part of town took too much time going and returning from the store and her mother asked 'What took you so long?" 'I was watching the funeral of the devil." What do you mean, asked her mother, watching the funeral of the devil?" The girl replied : 'I was watching the cars go by when a man said to me 'that the poor devil was only sick a short time."

Lots of folks are going to the hospital for operations. One of them when he came to, asked the physician: 'Tell me the truth, Doc, what's my bill "
