Washington, D. C. —Want to get your taxes reduced? Then you might wish to learn about a bill just introduced in Congress to bring about basic reform of the tax system. Among other things, it would reduce from 20 to 15 percent the personal income tax rate paid by those in the lowest bracket. It also would lower corporation income tax rates and all other personal income tax rates. The bill was introduced by two members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee—Reps. Herlong (D. Fla.) and Baker (R.Tenn.)

Its supporters contend that it should receive immediate consideration by Congress because its enactment is essential to protect the nation's future. Here in general is the reasoning behind the measure: The present tax system stunts economic growth by limiting the supply of capital essential for starting new businesses and expanding those already established. By removing tax blocks to progress, economic growth would be accelerated and a vital contribution made to the nation's economic progress and security. This economic expansion would produce additional tax revenue which in the long run, would more than compensate for the amount lost by the tax revision program.

The Herlong-Baker bill is the 1959 version of the Sadlak-Herlong measure, which was supported by a majority of witnesses during tax hearings early last year before the House Ways and Means Committee. The revised measure provides for a series of annual reductions in the personal and corporation income tax rates which would lower them, at the end of five years to a maximum of 47 percent. Implementation of this idea will not cure juvenile delinquency, the Oregon Senator cautioned. It is a preventive measure. Neuberger pointed out that many juvenile court authorities and child guidance specialists have testified to the effectiveness of such experiments as the Civilian Conservation Corps of the 1930's in providing opportunity for young persons and rehabilitating juvenile offenders. Neuberger said that with its vast public lands Oregon would receive many direct advantages from the program. He said enrollees in the corps would receive many direct advantages from the program and could perform a variety of conservation and recreation tasks now left undone or inadequately staffed due to financial restrictions on exist-

PORTER NEWS

Rose Wickersham
The Porter Sewing Club met on Thursday, Feb. 5th at the home of Mrs. Paul Pearson in Eagle Creek. In addition to knitting a comforter, they enjoyed a potluck dinner followed by a birthday surprise for Mildred Loucks. Gifts were food to be used in her trailer house she has recently moved into. Last Tuesday the club met at Edith Krocker's to make a quilt top. They finished one top and cut blocks for another. Attending were Mrs. Abraham Miller and her daughter Twila, Madonna and Margaret, Ruth Pearson, Mildred Loucks, and Mrs. Bontrager.

The Jack Chaney home was entered a couple of weeks ago and a few minor items were taken. They have all been-recovered and returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pherneton and daughter Debra have returned home from Illinois where they had been visiting Mrs. Pherneton's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Buser visited Mrs. Buser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Christenson in Seapoope Sunday.

Albert Girod, husband of Mrs. Vinet Girod, Porter school teacher, passed away last Wednesday afternoon. Going to Salem for the funeral from Porter were Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Randall and Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Miller. Mr. Lee and Mr. Randall were pallbearers.

Mrs. Stephen Beal's is teaching at the Porter school in Mrs. Girod's absence.

Merlin, Phillip and Alton Miller spent the late afternoon Sunday at Bontragers.

J. C. Zook of Canby preached the morning service at the Porter Mennonite Church Sunday. His wife came up with him. A week ago Sunday S. T. Shrock of Canby preached the services at the Porter church.

Due to the electric outage there was no evening services. Everybody met at the Miller home and sang songs by lamp-light.

Last Thursday night Bible study was held at the Clay Shelton home.

Sunday Mrs. Bontrager and Edwin had dinner with the Millers.

Mrs. Jerry Vawter was rushed to Portland by ambulance Thursday the 5th. She was paralyzed from the waist down. It was only temporary as she was walking again in 24 hours. The Vawters are now living in Portland. Mrs. Vawter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wickersham.

The people of the Porter district sure celebrated the Oregon Centennial Saturday and Sunday. We were without lights from 2 A. M. Saturday until 10 P. M. Sunday. They were cooking on heaters, camp stoves and in fireplaces. Some went to neighbors to cook. The kids thought it was fun to roast weiners in the fireplace. The older folks are glad such fun doesn't last. It was a happy moment when the lights went on.

The older Miller children Twila, Madonna and Margaret are going to attend a bible conference at Harrisburg, Oregon, this week.

Reverend Bontrager stayed another week at the Revival in Pennsylvania, and will return home Friday or Saturday.

Public Buying More Medical Care

Spending for medical care is now a more important part of the average American family's budget than ever before, Health Information Foundation reports.

Last year, for instance, 5.3 percent of the public's consumer-expenditure dollar went for hospital care, physicians' services, and other health items—a 40 per cent increase over the 1929 figure of 3.7 per cent.

As the chart shows, private spending for medical care is today at an all-time high. The total outlay last year (not counting government, philanthropic, and business expenditures) came to about $15 billion, five times the total for 1929.

For this stepped-up outlay, the Foundation points out, Americans are receiving a greater quantity and variety of services, as well as vastly improved quality. From 1935 to 1956, for example, the average annual number of patient-days in general and special hospitals in the United States rose from 0.88 to 1.25. During that time the number of births in hospitals increased from just under 800,000 to about 3.8 million a year.

The use of physicians' services is also on the upswing. In 1928-31 an annual average of 2.6 out-of-hospital doctor visits was reported by white persons in this country, against a figure of 4.8 in 1957 for the entire population. In the same period the proportion of persons seeing a physician at least once a year climbed from 48 to 63 per cent.

"In the past," says the Foundation, "pain, disability, and serious illness could be faced at relatively little expense—simply because there was relatively little that could be done for a sick person. Now pain and disability can often be avoided and death greatly postponed—but at the cost of more visits to physicians, more admissions to hospitals, more use of drugs and other treatments." Medical care, H.I.F. adds, "is now becoming a more important part of the American standard of living, while as an 'industry' it is becoming a more important part of the American economy."
