Cleopatra's Rival.

The beautiful Octavia, the wife of the great general, but weak and infamous, Antonius, was a woman of rare personal integrity and moral worth. When Antonius for the second time, and this irremediably, fell under the sway of the incomparable fascinations of Cleopatra, Octavia not only maintained the dignity of her husband's house and took care of her own and Antonius' children, but also those he had had by Fulvia, one of his previous wives. Of this Fulvia Plutarch slyly remarks:

It was her ambition to govern those that governed and to command the leaders of armies. It was to Fulvia that Cleopatra was obliged for teaching Antonius due submission to female authority. He had gone through such a course of discipline as made him perfectly tractable when he came into her hands. —Westminster Review.

A Perfect Leaf.

The teacher of a large class in one of the New York schools once said to the pupils who were leaving for the summer: "I want each of you to search for a perfect leaf and bring it to me when school reopens. Remember it must be perfect—every tooth right, not to speak of mold or blight or discoloration, not a vein broken." They searched faithfully, but none found a perfect leaf, though they learned a great deal about leaves while they examined them thus carefully.—New York Times.

Impatience.

Impatience turns an ague into a fever, a fever to the plague, fear into despair, anger into rage, loss into madness and sorrow to amazement.—Jeremy Taylor.

N Society women often feel the effect of too much gayety—balls, theatres, and teas in rapid succession find them worn out, or "run-down" by the end of the season. They suffer from nervousness, sleeplessness and irregularities. The smile and good spirits take flight. It is time to accept the help offered in Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine which was discovered and used by a prominent physician for many years in all cases of "female complaint" and the nervous disorders which arise from it. The "Prescription" is a powerful uterine tonic and nervine, especially adapted to woman's delicate wants for it regulates and promotes all the natural functions, builds up, invigorates and cures.

Many women suffer from nervous prostration, or exhaustion, owing to congestion or to disorder of the special functions. The waste products should be quickly got rid of, the local source of irritation relieved and the system invigorated with the "Prescription." Do not take the so-called celery compounds and nervines which only put the nerves to sleep, but get a lasting cure with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"FEMALE WEAKNESS."

MRS. HOOVER.

MRS. WILLIAM HOOVER, of Beltville, Richland Co., Ohio, writes: "I had been a great sufferer from 'female weakness;' I tried three doctors; they did me no good. I thought I was an invalid forever. But I heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and then I wrote to him and he told me just how to take it. I took eight bottles. I now feel entirely well. I could stand on my feet only a short time, and now I do all my work for my family of five."

SPOUSE OF A SIOUX PRINCESS.

Charles P. Jordan, Cousin of General Custer and a Typical Border Scout.

The queen of the Sioux is the wife of a white man. Neither of them is or has any reason to be ashamed of it. Red Cloud, without question the greatest Indian chief of this generation, gave her away at the altar on the Sioux reservation. The Sioux queen's husband is Charles P. Jordan, brother of Lieutenant Colonel Jordan, United States army, a cousin of General Custer and one of the most tried representatives of the government in the Indian country. He bears the honor of being the only white man who was ever elected a member of the Sioux council. In their days of power, before hardly a single white face had been seen west of the Missouri river, the Dakotas (Sioux) were one nation, ruled by one chief. The last of this autocratic dynasty was Old Smoke, who died in 1859 after seeing his people pushed westward and his power curtailed. Although the husband of more than one squaw, he left but one child, a tiny girl, who could hardly coo when Old Smoke got ready to float upward to the happy hunting grounds. When dying, he took her in his arms and named her The Beautiful Woman, and so she has since been known. The Beautiful Woman was a princess. She did no work, but learned of missionaries, scorned dog meat and kept her nails trimmed and her glorious black hair plaited and combed. She grew to womanhood, high spirited, proud and capricious—an ideal squaw. But as no ideal chief came to woo her she scorned an alliance with any common member of the tribe.

Young Jordan, a tall, bright eyed fellow of good education and address, came west as clerk to the Indian agent at Pine Ridge. He fell in love with the princess, and his love was reciprocated by the Sioux maiden. And so they were married by a priest in stole and surplice and with all the formalities of the white man's laws and customs. The big Sioux chiefs came from miles around to attend the wedding, the army officers from the neighboring posts jingled their spurs in the Old Virginia reel, which followed the benediction, and the pretty Sioux queen has since been plain Mrs. Jordan. A bevy of black eyed children bless the alliance. Charles P. Jordan, the Sioux queen's husband, has lived on the frontier for many years. He is still in his prime, and his adventures would fill a book—or several of them. He has been scalped, shot full of arrows, has been tortured and even condemned to death by the hostiles. Thirty miles from Rosebud agency he has a fine farm and stock ranch, well wooded with oak, elm, ash and box elder. There is a big orchard of cultivated fruits close by and a series of artificial dams down the valley, in which beaver are encouraged to construct their own peculiar fortifications. —Sioux City Journal.

Waste In the Construction of Houses.

In this day of improvements and convenient appliances of all sorts it is a rather remarkable fact that some way is not devised whereby the dwelling house can be made more comfortable during the winter season. One might almost fancy that builders and dealers in fuel were in league with each other, so badly built and faultily arranged is the average dwelling house.

Chimneys are so situated that their enormous bulk of bricks and mortar absorb a large portion of the heat, and these, with one side exposed to the weather, draw from the house a large share of the warmth that is needed to comfort within. To realize this one has but to glance at an ordinary brick building during a heavy rain. The chimney on the outside of the house will be dry, while the remainder of the wall is reeking with wet.

No one seems as yet to have devised any way to utilize this great waste which is going on in almost all of the public and private edifices all over the country. The value of the fuel thus absolutely wasted might astonish the careless and thoughtless could they but for one moment be brought to realize just what this means. Almost intolerably hot in summer and correspondingly cold in winter, it is sometimes a wonder to those who give the matter due consideration that the dwellers in these places enjoy even a moderate degree of health.—New York Ledger.

SHOULD THE GOVERNMENT ACT

To Suppress Fraudulent Advertisements of World's Fair Awards?

Letters from both the Chief of Awards (on Agriculture) at the Chicago World's Fair, Mr. J. S. Browning, and the Judge of Awards on Baking Powders expose the falsity of the claim made in behalf of a Chicago baking powder that it received the highest award for leavening power, keeping qualities, purity and general excellence.

The Judge of Awards says that this claim is false; that no such award was given to that baking powder.

Mr. Browning in his letter already published also shows that there was no award given to the Chicago company for the best baking powder.

It now appears further that the analyses of the powders exhibited showed a baking powder made in New York altogether the superior of the Chicago powder in both purity and strength.

The government has prohibited the use of awards advertising purposes of the medals awarded by the fair. It would be a great protection to the public if the government would also prohibit the publication of false claims, such as those that have been exposed in relation to such awards.

The only official competitive test of a national character, from which consumers can obtain the actual facts as to the relative values of all the principal brands of baking powder of the country, is that made by the Agricultural Department at Washington, D. C. It so happens that this was conducted by the same eminent chemist who acted as Judge of Awards at the Chicago Columbian Fair. As has already been published, at this examination the Royal Baking Powder was found to be the superior powder and highest in leavening strength.

The Wild Lands of Maine.

The Lewiston (Me.) Journal says that the wild lands of Maine would make 13 states as large as Rhode Island, two as large as New Hampshire and Vermont and one twice as large as Massachusetts.

People Who Have Gained Distinction in Their Particular Sphere in Life, Both in This Country and Abroad—Princess Alix.

Princess Alix of Hesse Darmstadt, the future Czarina of Russia, is the youngest sister of the reigning Grand Duke of Hesse Darmstadt and the favorite grandd[aughter] of Queen Victoria. Barely 20 years of age, she has been famed as one of the most beautiful, clever and spirited Princesses of the royal blood in all Europe. She was educated on strictly Lutheran lines, but she must put on a new religion with her bridal gown and be baptized into the Greek Church. From infancy Princess Alix showed a marked character and individuality of her own. Her mother, who was so popular in England, was "the Princess Alice," and died when her child was only 6 years of age. Princess Alix is sympathetic, impulsive and sensitive, and by her pithy wit keeps her friends and companions in a perfect state of merriment.

PRINCESS ALIX.

Baron de Courcil.

The strained relations existing between France and England make Baron de Courcil, French Ambassador to Great Britain, a person of interest. Baron de Courcil is very widely known. It will be remembered that he was the principal hero of the diplomatic "indiscretions" perpetrated by the Figaro a few months ago. He was President of the late International Court of Arbitration at Paris on the Behring Sea seal fishery dispute between England and America. Baron de Courcil has a peculiar history. His original name was Chaudron, and his father, a country attorney, was family solicitor to the Talleyrands. The attorney begged Talleyrand to take his clever son to England as one of his secretaries, which the latter finally did after having procured a change of name and a title for the attorney. Since then the press has been rapid. He represented France at Berlin.

BARON DE COURCIL.

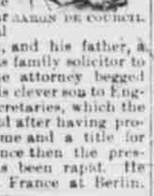
Mr. John Walter.

By the death of Mr. John Walter, proprietor of the London Times, the greatest English newspaper, England loses one of her most noted journalists. He died November 3, aged 76 years. He was a grandson of the founder of the Times. The paper was founded January 1, 1788, was very unprofitable at first, but under the founder's son ascended in public favor and political influence, and eventually became a highly remunerative concern. On the death of this gentleman his son, then 29 years of age, had just been returned to Parliament as the Liberal Conservative member for Nottingham. He had been educated at Eton and Exeter College, Oxford, was a barrister at Lincoln's Inn and had made a "grand tour." He did not take supreme control of the Times for some years after his father's death. He was elected to Parliament in 1868, 1874 and 1880, and was known as an excellent public speaker.

MR. JOHN WALTER.

Dr. Zakharin.

The death of a famous man is usually followed by a "row" among the physicians who attended him. The case of the Czar of Russia is no exception to the rule, as Dr. Zakharin and Prof. Leyden have had violent quarrels, each accusing the other of giving the Czar improper treatment. It will be remembered that Dr. Zakharin treated the great man during the earlier part of his last illness, and was dismissed for his brutal frankness in telling him of his condition and for his defiance of court etiquette. For the latter he is notorious. It is said he appeared at the Czar's bedside in a dressing gown and peasant's boots. These peculiarities have earned him the title of "The Russian Abernethy." To rich patients he is said to charge exorbitant fees, but prefers to attend on the poor, and his salary as professor at the University of Moscow is devoted to a fund for poor students.



DR. ZAKHARIN.

A. F. Goodridge.

Accompanying this sketch is a picture of Hon. A. F. Goodridge, Premier of Newfoundland, who has been of unusual interest during the crisis the government has passed through recently. It is said its experience is unparalleled in corruption. The government of Newfoundland is simply a miniature of that of Great Britain, consisting of a Governor, appointed by the Crown, a Legislative Council of fifteen members, appointed by the Governor and holding office for life, and a House of Assembly of thirty-six members, elected every four years by manhood suffrage and secret ballot. After the fall of the ministry of W. V. Whiteway, Hon. A. F. Goodridge was called upon by Governor O'Brien to form a Ministry, which he did. Much beneficial work has been done and a comparatively clean government established.

A. F. GOODRIDGE.

Prize Money Well Spent.

When the wealthy and talented Mrs. Sears of Boston won the $500 prize with her "Romola" at the water color exhibition, there was much quoting of the Biblical "To him that hath more shall be given." But the gracious prize winner has bestowed the entire amount, together with no inconsiderable sum from her own purse, upon a teacher in Boston, who has not had a vacation for 15 years, to enable her to make a trip to Europe.

...ON.

...vantages and ...wantages.

...one questioned ...she thought of the ...r women, she said:

...stions the most difficult ...especially difficult to an ... supposed by the public ... exceptionally successful. ... my work with all my heart, ... seem ungracious in me to spe... ragingly of the plank which has ... me up. Still there is not an actor or actress in the world who will not bear me out when I say that only members of the profession can form any estimate of the difficulties, tangible and intangible, which surround those who wish to make their career on the stage. To some people the dramatic faculty is natural, and do what they will they cannot keep it down. Still take an ordinary young woman who has her living to earn and compare what her life will be if she takes to tuition as an alternative to the boards.

"A good governess is treated as an equal, for surely no woman would put her children with a governess she could not respect and trust. If she is ill, she is taken care of, and if need be may take a holiday. Contrast her lot with that of an unknown actress, who is constantly thrown out of employment for months at a time and must appear at the theater at the appointed time no matter how ill she is. Of course the temporary salary is higher, and the little gowns she wears as soubrettes are furnished by the management. But if the girl falls ill she often loses her place altogether, or her understudy, if of a smarter appearance, may supplant her in favor.

"Then in England there is little opportunity for training, for there is no conservatoire for study. The would be actress has no alternative but to get into as good a theater as she can and be content if she can get nothing better to do than just to walk on and off as super. If I had my life to begin over again, I would study in Paris. The conservatoire has practically educated the French people where theatrical matters are concerned. After all, acting is art, and people should not try to act before they have been taught to do so, any more than they would think of singing in grand opera before they had studied with a good master.

"As for the qualifications essential to success on the stage, a certain amount of dramatic instinct is necessary, good looks are important, and good health is everything. People seem to think that an actress is necessarily an individual with shaky nerves and uncertain health, when the truth of it is that all of us who have made our mark in the world have been remarkably well balanced, healthy women; no one who is not strong can bear the terrible strain which is put upon an actress. That time in which the public sees us act represents but a small portion of our fatigue. With the rehearsals, learning new parts, the costumers, etc., we literally have no peace, and even when we are successful holidays come few and far between."

In speaking of marriage, Mrs. Kendal says: "All my experience in life teaches me that two of a trade always agree in the married state. I would have a tailor marry a dressmaker, a painter marry a sculptress, and so on. People are never so happy as when talking shop, and I think it is a disastrous thing when an actress marries a man who takes no interest in her success, or when an actor has to go home to a woman who prefers not to hear the theater mentioned. On the whole, the most united married couples I have known belong to my own profession. I am sure that an actress can be quite as good a wife and housemother as any other woman, rather better perhaps, than her more domestic sisters, for she always has to have her wits about her, and that helps her in daily life."

Crazed Engineers.

Insanity is very frequent among railway employes. Two dramatic illustrations can be mentioned. There is living in New Jersey, not far from Philadelphia, a man who for many years was the foremost passenger engineer between New York and Philadelphia on the Pennsylvania railroad. He ran all the specials and best trains, and in 10 years never had an accident. One night in the gleam of the headlight he saw a woman. He had only time to see her hands raised and to hear her cry, and before he could put his hand upon the lever he felt a jerk under the wheels and knew that all was over. Since that night he has never been on an engine. For months he did not sleep and later became practically insane, but only on the one point of seeing and hearing the woman his engine killed. Now he goes about harmlessly and aimlessly, but he has to be kept away from railroads, and in his fretful sleep he awakes with cries and paroxysms of horror. The other case is that of a man who was conductor of a train on the Camden and Amboy, whose train had an accident. He came out all right himself, but it preyed so upon his mind that one night he left his home, and going to the point where the accident occurred threw himself in front of a passing train, receiving injuries from which he died.—Philadelphia Times.

The Growth of Electric Railroads.

"The growth of the use of electricity as a motive power is remarkable," said E. L. Carson, an electrician of Boston. "Two years ago there were only 161 electric railways in the United States, while now there are over 500. Six years ago an electric car with two motors cost $4,500, while the bids for the last contract I knew to be given ran from $640 to $1,500, and the former was the price at which it was given, the manufacturers being reliable men. It seems singular that with such a constantly increasing demand there should be such competition as to run prices down to one-seventh of what was paid six years ago, but such is the case, and before it stops there will be very few lines of street railroad in the country not run by electricity."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A PERTINENT PARAGRAPH.

"Our country, if right, should be kept right; if wrong, should be put right," is a political maxim which, paraphrased, applies to other conditions of life, thus: our health, if right, should be kept right; if wrong, should be put right, especially in bodily ailments, such as pains and aches, which St. Jacobs Oil promptly cures. Many out of work should heed to give it a chance to cure, and it will give them a chance to go to work cured. Another adage is: "he doeth best who doeth well." Well, of course, you want to be well from all sorts of aches, and the best thing to do is to use the great remedy. He who does so is doing well indeed.

The Latest In Letter Writers.

An enterprising country publisher, who has remarked that immense numbers of people suffer from an almost unconquerable repugnance to letter writing, has prepared a special post card for the use of lazy correspondents. The back of the card is divided lengthwise into 10 unequal spaces, and the energies of the reluctant scribe are spurred by the following suggestive headings, one of which is conspicuously printed to the left of each of the divisions: 1. Date. 2. Excuse for not having written sooner. 3. State of health—(a) of self, (b) of family. 4. The writer's recent experiences. 5. News. 6. Family gossip. 7. Questions to be answered in your next. 8. Love to ——. 9. Love from——. 10. Signature.—London Tit-Bits.

Bewildering.

"What has become of that man who used to call here so often to see you?" asked Mrs. Easterside of her house servant, a rather good looking girl.

"He doesn't come any more to see me since he got married," was the sad reply.

"Oh, he has got married, has he? Whom did he marry?"

"Me."—Texas Siftings.

It is supposed that the fashion among women of reading the final pages of a novel first is due to their predilection for the last word.—Boston Transcript.

HAUNTED!

A haunted house is more practical and unromantic days is something of a rarity, but an individual haunted with the idea that treatment is incurable is a personage frequently met with. Disbelief in the ability of medicine to cure is only a mild form of monomania, although in some cases repeated failures to obtain relief from many different sources would almost seem to justify the doubt. If Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has demonstrated its ability to overcome dyspepsia, constipation, liver and kidney trouble, malarial complaints and nervousness, and its recorded achievements in the curative line ought at least to warrant its trial by any one troubled with either of the above ailments, even although the previous efforts to obtain remedial aid have been fruitless. Use with persistence, the Bitters will conquer the most obstinate cases.

"And were the ladies of the audience melted in tears?" "Were they? I don't believe there was a complexion in the house that wasn't dissolved."

TRAVELING RISKS.

With the increased facilities for travel and the great number of travelers, there has been naturally a great increase in the risk of accidents.

Every one, who for any reason is compelled to incur these risks, should keep by him a supply of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS, for they are a wonderful specific in strains of the back or limbs, such as are almost inevitable in case of accident.

Any one starting on a long journey should have one as a part of his equipment. Commuters on suburban trains should keep them both at home and in the office. ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS have repeatedly proved their great value in time of need.
