Some Fun.

Coyote is fast coming to the front as a competitor for "Row River" noted in the history of this county as a place where one could get a row at the dropping of a hat. But we are glad to record that Row river has reformed somewhat. But as for Coyote creeks things looks Boerish. As we hear it they had a regular battle royal, a knock down and a dragout affair at the house of Sylvester Rauch's Friday December 29, on the occasion of a party at that place in which three Smiths, three Rauchs and one John Gates jr participated.

It all occurred right on the ballroom floor over a dispute as to whose turn it was to dance. For a time it is said the air was full of oaths, gas, hair, beard, shrieks of the ladies and a little blood. This was all.

But again it is the Broad-Axe's duty, seeing that our dailies have ignored the item to state that one Hen Gates and Jim Fisk, a few days prior to the fight at Sylvester Rauch's, tried their skill as heavy weight pugilists at Fleck's store on Coyote. Some discolored patches on Gate's face was the result of this contest.

Why don't our fighting fellows go to Filipino or South Africa?
