We have preaching at the Hayward school house once a month.

E. C. Miller's babe seems to be outgrowing its throat disease which troubled it so badly last fall.

We all think that Mountain Side is on the right side of the mountain. The mountain is a gradual sploce from the top to the Tualatin, a distance of about five miles. The people have felled the forest and made themselves farms that produce well, and the people seem to be a contented and good class of citizens.

FOREST DALE.

EDITOR HATCHET.—As the noise attending the Lee trial has about died out, at least for the present, the Attorneys for state and the Jury deserves great credit for so nobly upholding law and justice. Their action is in direct contrast to some of the residents of our Valley who signed letters certifying to his good character and sent them to the Judge. Some of them had only been here a few years and one only one year, a very short time to know much about the life of any man. But we do not blame them for not wanting to get on the stand and swear in his behalf openly and let the public know where they stand in shielding a criminal.
