Abraham Lincoln said, "I wish every one of those fellows in Wall street who are gambling in gold at such a time as this, had his devilish head shot off."

Benjamin Franklin answered the present single standard men when he wrote, "It is to the highest interest of a trading country in general to make money plentiful and it can be a disadvantage to none who have honest designs."

The republican party is the true friend of silver and the only party that is its friend. The democratic party discredited the metal, would have demonetized it if they could. The populists are really working to do away with both gold and silver and want only paper.

The editor of the HATCHET, the Republican candidate for county school superintendent, has been accused of malfeasance in office, of having bought the nomination, of being a populist, and now comes the Argus with the charge that he is a democrat, and yet he lives, nay, more, life is not yet even a burden.

"For many ages those parts of the world which are engaged in commerce have fixed upon gold and silver as the chief and most proper material for this medium [of exchange], they being in themselves valuable metals for their fineness, beauty and scarcity. By these, particularly silver, it has been used to value all things else." These are the words of an early Mitchell Republican, Benjamin Franklin.

John H. Mitchell has the support of every good republican, gold, bimetalist or free silver, and the confidence of all the people, not because he agrees with all of them but because they know he will work for their best interest as he honestly sees it and that every man, woman and child in Oregon, irrespective of party or condition, has in him a true friend and can command his good services at any time. The republican candidates are Mitchell men and a vote for them is helping men to the legislature who stand pledged to vote for the re-election of Senator Mitchell.

Every one is quoting Secretary Carlisle now. Here is our favorite quotation. It is what that ardent single gold standard champion said in 1878 while a member of the house of representatives:

"I know that the world's stock of precious metals is none too large and I see no reason to apprehend that it ever will become so. Man-kind will be fortunate indeed, if the annual production of gold and silver coin shall keep pace with the annual increase of population, commerce and industry. According to my view of the subject, the conspiracy which seems to have been formed here and in Europe, to destroy by legislation and otherwise from three-sevenths to one-half of the metallic money of the world, is the most gigantic crime of this or any other age. The consummation of such a scheme would ultimately entail more misery upon the human race than all the wars, pestilence and famine that ever occurred in the history of the world. The absolute and instantaneous destruction of half the entire movable property of the world, including horses, ships, railroads and all other appliances for carrying on commerce, while it would be felt more sensibly at the moment, would not produce anything like the prolonged distress and disorganization of society that must inevitably result from the permanent annihilation of one-half the material money of the world."

"The effect of contraction of the medium of exchange can be illustrated in this way: Supposing a man whose business is to raise wheat, for which he receives one dollar per bushel, and he raised fifty thousand bushels and sells them for fifty thousand dollars. With this money he makes the first payment of a business block in a city, for which he agrees to pay one hundred thousand dollars, that is, he pays one-half the purchase price and owes the other half, for which he gives a note due in one year, calculating to sell his next years' crop of fifty thousand bushels of wheat for fifty thousand dollars and pay the indebtedness. These parties who work a contraction of the medium of exchange commence their operation, and by making the medium of exchange scarce, force the price of wheat down to fifty cents. The wheat grower only realizes twenty-five thousand dollars for his fifty thousand bushels of wheat, just one half of the amount he expected to realize, with which he is to meet his note of fifty thousand dollars. By this operation the contractionists have made it almost impossible for this man to save even the previous money he has invested in this property and he loses the property altogether. Does not this tell truly the experience of the past three years, since the discrediting of silver? Is money that does this, honest?"

Eczema is a frightful affliction, but like all other skin diseases it can be permanently cured by applications of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. It never fails to cure Piles. J. C. Clark, druggist.
