WELCOME, VETERANS.

Forest Grove dressed in her very best is doing the honors to the veterans and her other guests. For all our city has a hearty welcome, but especially is the freedom of this forest town tendered to the old soldiers. The rememberance of the deeds which they have done, of the dangers undergone, of the devotion which they have proved, secures for them a warm place in the heart of every patriotic citizen and such our people are.

Particularly fitting is it that the birthday of the glorious nation which was preserved through their exertions should come while they are with us. As the heroes of our country's early history are commemorated let it not be forgotten that no less than the honor which belongs to the founders of a nation is that which is due to those who have preserved and guarded it after it has been established.

A MODERN SCHOOL.

The victory of Cornell's crew over Harvard in the recent boat race is pluck defeating pride. Cornell has had to fight conservatism in athletics as well as in education and in every battle has won.

As the first of the great coeducational schools she was looked down on until Miss Thomas (now Prof. Irvine of Wellesley) proved herself superior in Greek to the representatives of all the old colleges. As an institution drawing largely country boys aristocratic Harvard and Yale sneered at her until the "hayseeds" beat them in rowing over twenty years ago,
