LEGALIZED COUNTERFEITING.

An associated press dispatch of 1894 gives a plan which the silver mine owners are attempting to have legalized by Bryanizing the currency.

GOOD COUNTERFEITS.

A METHOD OF UTILIZING SEIGNIORAGE IN VOGUE IN THE WEST.

Omaha, March 20.—The announcement yesterday at the Omaha headquarters of the United States civil service that probably 500,000 of counterfeit silver dollars had been successfully placed in circulation here by a gang of well-known criminals, disturbed banking circles materially.

Great scholars they were but of the stripe of him of whom the poet wrote: All foreign nationalities And realms and principalities With no trace of indecision He could name with great precision. But he used to think Nebraska Was a river in Alaska

It is "seigniorage scheme" on the sly and has finally attracted the attention of the government. The detectives are satisfied that they have the counterfeiters where they cannot escape. The most puzzling feature of the situation is how the output from the gang can be separated from the dollars issued by the government, as they are exactly similar."

The silver mine owners are wanting to work this seigniorage scheme and it is natural that they should, but the wonder is that there should be innocent people in no way to be benefited, but sure to lose who are assisting them.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

The mint report for the month of September show that from bullion purchased under the act of July 16, 1890 2,700,100 standard silver dollars, legal tender in payment of all debts public and private for any amount, were coined.

This silver was not purchased at the present market price, 64 cents an ounce or it would have cost only $1,336,549.12 and the profit would have been $1,363,550.88.

Had our country had free coinage the silver mine owners would have made this profit. Would the plain people have been any better off? Would they not have been worse off just by the amount of their interest in the profit to the general government? It was only when the people's party degenerated and became corrupt that free coinage was substituted for unlimited coinage as the issue.

THE COLLEGE MCKINLEY CLUB.

Pacific University has fallen into line with the advanced colleges of the country and its students have organized a political club, not only that but a club of the right political complexion, one for McKinley and Hobart, protection and prosperity.

It had been the practice for years back to instill into the minds of the college student political principles based on theory and not on history, and which should have found no place in the education of those who were to be American citizens.

These theorists who knew nothing practically or in a material way gravely expounded the dogmas of English free trade, for example, or solved off hand problems which perplex the most profound students of practical political economy.

It was to counteract and combat such insidious influences that the American Republican College League, which now has its branches in schools in all parts of the country, was organized. The boys of today know that our world is not a Utopia, that systems formulated for an ideal land will seldom work in a real one and that political methods of the time of Elizabeth have been outgrown and are obsolete in the latter quarter of the nineteenth century.

So more modern professors have come about of those who continue to superciliously sneer at the views of practical politicians and men of affairs find their words fall upon unheeding ears. For our country there rises a brighter future with its doctors, lawyers, clergy, teachers and men of affairs entering upon life unhandicapped by political heresies which they must unlearn.

BRYAN'S ORIGINALITY.

As a contribution to the originality of Mr. Bryan's famous "cross of gold," a stanza is here quoted from an old poem by J. H. L. Zillman on "The Modern Pharisees:"

"Not on a cross of wood with nails, "Nor by the rabble's maddened cry; "But on a cross which never falls "To make its victim surely die. "That cross is now a surety gold, "And not of wood, as was of old.

A multitude of instances have been given which show that the novelty of this campaign in reality is stale and time-worn. The would-be statesman is an upstart deck'd in borrowed feathers.

The record of the debate on the bill for the admission of New Mexico to the Union, which was under discussion in 1894, gives an opportunity to study the character of a man who is now seeking the highest national honor. What is to be thought of one who would vote against the provision to teach in the public schools the English language, that language in which we are proud to tell of the rising generation the glorious victories of their ancestors in the cause of freedom, the language in which is written the constitution of our country, the grandest work of man in any age? Yet Mr. Bryan now has the audacity and brazen effrontery to ask the American Nation to elevate him to a still higher office when such is his record.

Mr. Bryan has so great a repugnance for everything English that June 28, 1894, when the question of requiring the English language to be taught in the public schools of half-foreign New Mexico (which was then seeking statehood) was up before the house of representatives, he voted against its being required.

Obituary.

A reader contributes these lines on the sad death of young Carl Hansen:

In was early Friday morning when Carl took down the gun. There were some birds in the field and he wanted to get one; Little did his mother think as her boy closed the door, That he would be lying cold in death before another hour was o'er. His father went to look for him, the sight made him almost insane, For there lay the young pride of his life with a bullet through his brain. O God, it was terrible, as has before been said, For a kind father to carry his boy to his loving mother, and him lying in his arms dead. But weep not as weep others, who have no hope above, For Carl was a loving boy and we trust his Savior loved. It does not seem possible our friend is in his grave, But blest be the God that has taken, and blest be the God that gave. But O how we miss him; parents an I brothers our sympathy is yours; And let us all live to meet him where death and parting is no more.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Mr. Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors, who finally gave him up, saying: "Your boy won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at Miller's Pharmacy.

by the "repeal of the Sherman law." As the purchasing clause of the Sherman law was repealed in November, 1893, and the panic occurred before November, Mr. Dunbar has probably discovered a new cause for the panic of 1893, which entitles him to fame.

A large crowd assembled at the meeting, and the voters were given a chance to cloose between facts of history and the success of the republican party on the one side, or the assumptions and assertions of the Bryan party on the other.—Oregonian.

County School Notes.

Through some inadvertence the old list of text books still appears on the back of the new teacher's register. Rule 10 on the inside cover makes a good suggestion regarding keeping a daily record of recitations but the book fails to provide for it.

Report of Patton Valley school district No. 32 for the month beginning Sept. 14, and ending Oct. 11, 1895: No. days taught, 20. No. days attendance, 299 1/2. No. days absent, 29 1/2. No. times tardy, 7. No. boys enrolled, 70. No. girls enrolled, 10. Total No. enrolled, 17. Average No. belonging, 15. Average daily attendance, 13. The following named pupils were not tardy during the month: Janie Bates, Pearl and Oliver Davis, May Warner, Jesse Bates, Emma and Edward Martin. Those neither absent nor tardy were as follows: Emma Martin, May Warner and Jessie Bates.—Anna Bates, teacher.

The state superintendent has settled a question which ought never to have arisen, but yet has been often asked. Rule 16 in the new Teacher's registers says: "Boards of directors should meet at the close of each school month and authorize the chairman and clerk to draw warrants for the payment of teacher's salaries." This construction of subdivision 18, section 37, School Laws, is in the nature of an official opinion and means that directors must hold board meetings once a month while school is in session. School orders drawn without such a meeting to authorize them are at the personal risk of the clerk.

Mental Arithmetic as commonly taught involves little mental exertion, brings less benefit and is a drag for both teacher and pupil. Just as in other branches, it is because too much dependence is placed on the text book. In this branch the text book should never be taken to the class. Problems should not be re-stated by the pupil nor the formal solution given after some proficiency has been attained unless an error is made. In that case the work should be fully analyzed that it may be shown where the mistake has been made. The practical object of the study is to enable every day problems to be solved in the head quickly and accurately, and this end should be kept in view by the teacher.
