Teachers' Meeting at Hillsboro.

The stormy weather prevented the patrons and visiting teachers from attending largely, the teachers' meeting Saturday at Hillsboro. After opening remarks by J. H. Stanley, Mr. Jos Gleason gave a paper upon the need of "Uniformity of Text-books in the Schools," urging the need of a more definite list of books, and also that care be taken to not buy untried maps. Miss Rosa Wilcox read a list of one hundred books suitable for childhood and youth. These books are classic, being written by authors of world-wide fame. As Miss Grace Cronkite was absent, her excellent paper, "Department of the Teacher in the School room," was read by Miss Grace Boscow. Mrs. M. M. Pittenger gave a good selection, "Sympathy for the Little Children". It was thought best to have a permanent organization for improvement and Miss Bird Brown, Jos Gleason Harry Colman, were appointed a committee to choose a name. They decided that "The Teachers' Mutual Benefit Association" was suitable. The following officers were then elected: J. H. Stanley, president; Harry Colman, vice-president; Rose Wilcox, secretary. For the meeting the first Saturday of next month, the following teachers were appointed: Messrs. Frank Stewart, Perry Corum, Misses Humphrey, Boscow and Mrs. Dora J. Elliott. The teachers attended and were pleased with Prof. Werschkul and his class of children, and adjourned with a song by Misses Boscow, Bristow, Wilcox and Humphrey.
