FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Apportionment of county school funds has just been made on the basis of 25 cents a child. This will bring the total rate for this year up to $3.50 a child, within 15 cents of what it was last year. However to do this it has been necessary to pay out the last dollar in the fund while in previous years the several hundred dollars realized from the delinquent taxes after September 1 has been allowed to wait to swell the Spring division.

The public schools of the county are now needing all the assistance that can be given them. Other departments of county work are in good running condition having been well provided for. To meet the requirements of the law the levy for schools cannot be less than five mills and it should this year be made at least six, and as much more as the other needs of the county will admit of without increasing too much the burden of taxation. The public will realize an advantage from the additional expenditure out of proportion to the present outlay.

This year's tax admitted only of short terms with time barely to get fairly started into work. An extra month added to the usual three months' term would double the efficiency of the average school. There is need now of more schooling and it would be real economy to provide for it. The harder the times the more incumbent it is to provide for the public schools.

City election is near at hand and nearer still the caucus to nominate candidates for the various city offices. To the integrity and ability of these men will be entrusted the administration of affairs which closely concern every citizen and taxpayer. The choice of nominees should not be left to a few but every one entitled to vote should be present at the caucus prepared to act intelligently and have a voice in the proceedings.

The editor-in-chief of The Index is sedulously pursuing his electric history, even to the neglect of attendance to classes. Why do students give most attention to studies which are easiest for them?

Gamma Sigs had a lively meeting last Saturday night. Several new members were initiated and a most excellent programme was rendered. The next meeting will be held the first Saturday night of next term at which the election of officers for the spring term will be held.

Tuesday evening was the time and the auditorium was the place when and where the Senior and Junior classes spread themselves before the learned citizens of Forest Grove. Long before the time set for the performance to begin a large, impatient audience awaited the arrival of the performers. They were finally rewarded and the two classes took their places amid wild vociferation and plaudits. The exercises were opened by an invocation by Rev. Starr, after which Mrs. Wells prettily sang a solo.

The audience then lost its control and was held spell-bound by the renowned orator C. E. Bradley. (The reporter was also under his hypnotic influence, so could not catch his theme). The stately Miss Lorena Gleason then read a carefully prepared essay on "Capital and Labor." Misses Lee and Parker then rendered in a masterly manner a piano duet. The electric lights began to grow dim as the next performer Mr. H. H. Hartley took the platform. The dimness of the electric lights was soon accounted for by the dazzling radiance of the speakers face. He spoke of his experience as a pirate and gave good advice about going to sea. The audience was then electrified and entranced by the matchless eloquence of Mr. P. C. Bauer. He spoke of the growth and development of the Democratic party and gave indirect quotations, Miss Eugenie Tompkins with exquisite execution rendered a piano solo which concluded the programme.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE.

BOSTON'S SOCIETY FOR BETTER GOVERNMENT.

Stands on the Moral Side of All Public Questions—Calls on Men of All Races and Creeds to Strike Down Evil—Wants Pure Men in Public Places.

The Municipal league of Boston is an organization which has for its object the better government of the city. President Samuel B. Capen at a meeting of the league delivered an address outlining its work for the coming year. After explaining the reforms advocated by the league Mr. Capen concluded as follows:

Upon the moral side of all public questions this league will ever be found. We are eager for the time to come when we can embody our principles in a list of candidates for the suffrage of our citizens. We know that it is when great principles are seen in men whom the people trust that the people are stirred through and through, enthusiasm is aroused and evil is destroyed as by a breath from the Almighty. We want more pure, honest, God fearing men in public places. The religious citizenship of the city, Protestant, Catholic, Hebrew, must combine its ballots and strike down every evil. Those whom we represent hold more than the balance of power; they hold the majority of the ballots of the city, and we hope to use them at an early day as never before for righteousness and truth and God.

The splendid words spoken by Archbishop Ireland in the Boston theater last April need to be ever before us:

"Let the country always elect as its guardians its best and worthiest sons; let voters seek them out and give them honor. Never should voters choose incapable men; less yet, dishonest and immoral men. The party placing on its ticket dishonored names should be overthrown in inglorious defeat and learn the stern lesson that insult is never offered with impunity to the sacredness and purity of the republic."

Until that time comes we mean to inspire all as God gives us strength and opportunity to attend to their public duties. It means work, constant and unremitting, from our citizens. We cannot do our whole duty to the state by spending five minutes twice a year in marking a list of names in a polling booth. There is preliminary work of education to be done for ourselves and others. There are great problems to be solved; there are great civic ideals to work out.

And in this great work of the education of our citizens we must depend very largely upon the press. Most gratefully would we recognize the immense help we have already received from the daily and weekly papers. They have not only given large space in their news columns, but almost every paper has commended our efforts in its editorial columns. We are confident that we can depend upon the press still to help us in our efforts. We want all to know the city's needs and to note the abuses. "Ignorance is the mother of indifference."

Eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty, but of pure politics and clean officials. We believe our press, as a whole, will still aid us in our efforts to arouse a civic pride which seems to be dormant in so many of our citizens.

May we not appeal for moral support to that large class in our city who, following the common accepted title, are denominated the laboring classes? We have talked with many of their representative men on three or four occasions and have been met with a sympathetic interest. We are striving most earnestly for better government, in which they, with us, are interested.

They have spoken to us most earnest words against the election of weak and indifferent men. We are striving for proportional representation, through which they can have full representation, and when things for which they contend will have respectful hearing in a position of influence. The problems of the next century are to be more and more the problems of human brotherhood. We have not a common ancestry or a common religion, but are of many nations and many religions. We want to fuse all interests together under the mighty inspiration and purpose to have a city in which there shall be no slums to contaminate and destroy, but where schools and public institutions of every name shall be the best in all the world.

Has not the time fully come when, unless all our interests are to be imperiled, many must subordinate their business and their pleasures for the public weal? And out of it will come a purer and a better city and a nobler and higher standard of life.

As a league we recognize no sectarian creed in the public business, but we stand together for public righteousness and truth and upon the common platform of American citizenship. For the third time this league makes this declaration of its principles and enters upon another year of effort.

The lamented Bishop Brooks left the world this sentiment, "No man has come to true greatness who has not felt in some degree that his life belongs to his race." May we not add that no man has come to true citizenship who has not felt in some degree that his life belongs to the state?

Want a Business Government.

The Municipal league of Philadelphia has sent a circular to several thousand of the business men of that city asking them to join the league in the effort to secure a business administration of the city government.
