

REPRESENTATIVE GAUNT AND SENATOR MILLER.

Murray Wade, Portland's clever cartoonist, has just issued a catchy sketch-book of the legislative session of 1903, in which the Oregon lawmakers are shown as Mr. Wade saw them. Representative Gaunt will be readily recognized and beside him appears the Senator from Linn County, the Democrats' own "Milt" Miller, by the way, a brother of the Forest Grove pharmacist.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW,
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

IN NEW ENGLAND.

Strong Testimony From a New Hampshire Paper.
The great success of the grange has been primarily due to the strong educational policy that has prevailed. Those in charge of its affairs have regarded the educational feature as the feature of the greatest value and have strengthened the Order by adding to the intelligence of its members. Whether this has been attempted through well arranged literary exercises, through the rendition of ritual work or through a course of study and reading at home under grange auspices, the result has been the same and noticeable in the people connected with any live grange.

In no less than four of the New England states the grange has organized and conducts mutual fire insurance companies, by which large saving in cost of insurance is made by reason of the inexpensive methods of operation and the superior class of risks upon which policies are written. While it is true that farm risks as a whole are extra hazardous, the property owned by members of the grange is less hazardous and can be carried at lower rates than farm property in general, as the experience of these companies has shown.

The benefit of the grange to New England is not confined to its educational and financial features. The benefits derived from its social features are beyond estimate and not only affect the 100,000 members, but as many more people with whom they come in contact. The grange is fitting its members to enter good society with credit to themselves and their calling. Scattered all over New England we find the church, the school and the grange hall standing side by side and each an important factor in any community. They are often referred to as the trinity of New England.

Probably the grange in New England will in the future exert its greatest influence upon public affairs not by the men and women it will fit and place in public positions, but by the quiet work performed in the discussion of public questions in the 1,000 grange halls, where more than 25,000 meetings are held annually.—Mirror and Farmer.

MAKING A GRANGE PROSPER

State Master S. H. Derby of Delaware Suggests How It Should Be Done.

Grange meetings to arouse and keep up interest must observe certain features. No grange can live on ritual. Observing the order of business and doing nothing else is a sure way of killing all enthusiasm and finally destroying the grange. A programme well considered for the particular needs of a grange should be published before the meeting, and no meeting should be held without having a programme.

Each member of a grange should contribute something for the good of the order no matter how poor the subject or how poorly prepared. Each one to grow must do something and do it the best he or she knows how. The master is responsible for the well being of each member, and on him is the command to see that each has work assigned.

There is need of trained young men in business, in legislative halls, everywhere—men who know the needs of the hour, men who can think and to a purpose, men who work by system and make every move count for something done. Such training the grange gives to those who study its constitution and rules and who enter into helpful, active grange work. I appeal to you, masters of subordinate granges, that you so lay out the work that each may profit by it.—E. S. H. Derby.

An Ancient Landmark.

The Schenectady (N. Y.) Pomona grange held a recent meeting in the spacious old residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Sanders of Scotia. The house was built in 1713 and has been in the Sanders family for many generations. Dinner was served at 1 o'clock on a circular mahogany table which is 200 years old. The parlor is completely furnished with mahogany furniture bought in 1793, with the exception of the piano, which is a modern upright. Nevertheless, Mrs. Sanders exhibited with pride a piano about 200 years old which stands in the upper hall. The collection of china, candlesticks and andirons is remarkable, and all present were much interested in looking at the treasures of so many years ago, says the Utica Press.

A Hint to Others.

Last year the Michigan state grange offered a handsome book-see to each grange in the state initiating twenty or more new members during the second quarter, 150 granges winning desks and about 5,000 recruits being secured.

It is announced that the next session of the national grange will be held in Rochester, N. Y., in November of this year. New York state granges will send large delegations, and Pennsylvania and Michigan will have large representations.

Michigan's state grange secretary reported at the annual meeting 579 working granges with 36,000 members. Over fifty new granges have been organized since.

Franklin and North Brookfield (Mass.) granges were both officered throughout by women last year.
