A WELSH BABY PROPHECY.

An extraordinary incident, alleged to have occurred about the middle of December last, has caused an immense sensation in Bethesda. On a Friday while a woman was washing her three-months-old child, so the story goes, she was thunderstruck to hear the baby say, "Blwyddyn of nadwy fydd y fiwyddyn nesaf, mam," which, roughly translated, means "Next year will be a terrible year, mother!" In her astonishment and terror the mother laid the child down and ran to a neighbor's house and told a woman there of the occurrence. The woman at once ran to the house and, picking the child up, soothed and caressed it awhile, and then, half playfully, half in earnest, she said to the child, "Did you tell your mother that next year would be a terrible year?" To her unbounded astonishment, the child replied, "Yes," and fell back dead. The child was buried on the following Saturday afternoon in the presence of large crowds, who discussed the story and are spreading it far and wide.—Liverpool Post.

New Scheme in Tips.

M. Leon Dunfour, a Parisian restaurateur, has decided to do away with tips by assessing his guests 5 per cent of their bills and dividing the money thus raised among his waiters. He has had little notices to this effect printed on pretty pink paper in three languages—to wit, French, English and German—explaining modestly that this is a trial made in order to palliate as far as possible the irritating question of gratuities and adding that the percentage will be handed over in full to the staff and be considered as taking the place of the former gratuities. The majority of his guests thoroughly approve of it, and so does his staff. He calculates the average percentage a month at 1,200 francs, which, divided among his ten employees, makes 120 francs for each. This means a rough total of 1,440 francs a year for each member of his personnel.

Where Briers Come From.

The best brier root from which pipes are made comes from the borders of Italy and France. In the mountainous districts of these countries roots are dug out that have grown for ages and are sometimes larger than a man's body weighing hundreds of pounds.

A Natural Bridge.

Geologists have come to the conclusion that Australia and Tasmania were formerly united by a land bridge and that it was on it that Tasmanian animals entered Victoria.

Lengthy Land Tenure.

A unique example of lengthy land tenure by the same family is recorded in the French press. The property in question is that of St. Bertha, which for 386 years has been leased by members of the Moucadet family.

Cocoa Butter.

Solid coconut oil (cocoa butter), being cheaper than lard, is much used in Hungarian kitchens, especially for making sweet pastry.

Coal Deposits.

It is estimated that beneath the earth's crust there are about 8,000,000,000 yards of coal at depths available for the use of man—in round numbers, a little over 7,000,000,000,000 tons.

Making Good.

The expression "make good," product of the American habit of creating short and telling idioms, is beginning to comprise the whole story of success in any endeavor, says the St. Louis Republic. Whether it be an appeal to public support, whether it be in the smaller relation of services rendered to an employer, the American judgment is becoming unusually keen in deciding whether, on the whole, a man "makes good." It is not precisely a question of this or that shortcoming. It is chiefly a question of a spontaneous judgment. There are no ifs or buts connected with the matter. The man "makes good" or he doesn't "make good," and that's an end to discussion. Anybody can see whether he does or not. Excuses don't go.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

Of the 638 colleges in the United States 330 admit women.

In the public schools of Germany the bright pupils are separated from the stupid ones. Medical men do the sorting.

Only one school in Maine indulges in midwinter graduation exercises, and that is the Gorham Normal school, which sends out two classes of graduates each year.

Not a Fake

Our friends and customers are asked to pay no attention to mis-statements made by parties who claim to know more about our business than we do ourselves.

There is no fake about our closing out. We are advertizing in several eastern papers to find a buyer for our store, have had several letters of inquiry and will sell to the first party who puts up the money.

Respectfully
