We are now certain of our candidates and our platform for the national campaign which is upon us. A stronger leader than Roosevelt, and a better running mate than Fairbanks, could not be obtained and the people of the Nation will not be backward about showing their confidence in them at the polls this fall, by the greatest popular vote ever given to candidates for president and vice president. The strong platform adopted by the convention at Chicago, only makes this result more certain.

It is the duty of every person in Forest Grove to attend the school meeting next Saturday and have a voice in the matter of the enlargement of the school house. The needs of a growing city should not be neglected and most of all the institution upon which our religious and moral structures are founded should have our liberal support. Let every one attend this meeting and do not go with a narrow, selfish, personal view, but vote for our actual needs in a generous yet conservative way.

H. C. Atwell, our genial postmaster, has been ascertaining how many of his townsmen want him to continue as an occupant of Uncle Sam's building on First street. To his surprise and satisfaction many seem to wish his retention by the Postal Department, and to signify this over 500 voters have already signed a petition asking for his reappointment. This is an unusually large petition and shows the esteem which Mr. Atwell is held. He has made a good postmaster, and that fact alone will be a strong factor in securing for him a second term.

A Communication

To the Editor of the News:
It has been a question in my mind why conditions exist as they do in reference to our valley wheat. We have on our plains some of the finest wheat in the world. No superior flour was ever ground than the valley produces. There is a question I would like to ask my friends and neighbors. Why will you buy the eastern Oregon flour, when by that act you are reducing the price of our own wheat? We have good wheat, we have good mills, and have as a result the best of flour., and in the face of that you destroy the market for our wheat by using the wheat your competitor raises, while your own stays as a drug on the market. Let us use home manufactured flour.
A FARMER.
