

FOREST GROVE IN BIOGRAPHY

C. W. HUDSON:—The popular postmaster of Gaston whose career has been one of signal usefulness in the discharge of his official duties, merits high praise in these columns. He is also the Southern Pacific railroad and Express agent and has officiated in the above capacity during the past eleven years. He is an unswerving official in the discharge of his duties and no man could be more zealous than he. We therefore accord him high praise here.

JUDGE E. X. HARDING:—The efficient and popular judge of Gaston merits distinction in this issue. He has served as justice of the peace here during the past term, and was unanimously re-elected at the recent election. He is a gentleman of sterling worth and merit, and represents Gaston Milling Company's interests. The mill has a capacity of 75 barrels per day and the mill commands a large local business. We take pleasure in awarding Judge Harding a place of honor among the celebrities of this issue.

PARKER HOTEL:—A pioneer, a substantial citizen, and hotel "host" that would be hard to excel in Oregon is Mr. E. Parker, proprietor of the Parker Hotel of the flourishing town of Gaston. Mr. Parker has lived in this community 29 years. He was born in Maine, lived in Missouri, and made his money in Oregon. He is an old G. A. R. Veteran and served in the 1st. Missouri Cavalry, from 61 to 65. He served as J. P. two years and we take pleasure in awarding Judge Parker a worthy place in these columns.

J. D. HIBBS:—No review of Gaston mercantile interests would be at all adequate unless a place of distinction was awarded this enterprising and progressive merchant. He operates the only leading first class general merchandise store in Gaston and commands the trade thereabouts. He has been here 8 years and the strictest honor has always been the guiding star of his life. He takes an interest in the well being of the community in which he resides and we take pleasure in awarding him a worthy place of honor in these columns.

EVEREST DRUG CO:—Every state has contributed its quote of energy, capacity and mental force to the development of the great northwest and the Everest Drug Company merits distinction in this biographical edition. Its representatives keeps abreast of the times and moreover keep a complete stock of drugs, chemicals, proprietary articles and patent medicines. As we pass in review the various business houses of Gaston we award the Everest Drug Company a worthy place of honor here.

CHARLES SNIDER:—An agriculturist of Cornelius in the person of Charles Snider must not be omitted. He was born in Germany, lived in Ohio and took Greeley's advice to come west and grow up with the native Oregonians. He has a good farm of over a hundred acres three miles from town, and Mr. and Mrs. Snider are numbered among the thrifty, prosperous and highly esteemed residents of the community. In this write up edition we give this representative of the German fatherland a worthy place in these columns.

GASTON MEAT MARKET:—We believe a very prominent position in referring to the business interests of Gaston should be awarded the Gaston meat market, operated by Mr. Neal Brown. He has conducted the market here for four years and also operates an equine caravansary throughout the rural district. Mr. Brown has served as deputy sheriff and constable in the east prior to pitching his tent on the coast. He takes a keen interest in all that pertains to the growth and welfare of the community in which he resides.

A. L. HATCH:—This representative of the anvil and its kindred implements of warefare whose scenes of labor and place of abode in Cornelius must receive due mention in this issue as we chronicle the progressive men of the section. Mr. Hatch is well known far and near as an artisan second to none hereabouts. His blacksmith shop commands the trade and custom for an extensive scope of country and he places "Hatch guarantee" on every job turned out. His prices are reasonable and on his merits alone we accord him this generous mention.

DR. MADEMOISELLE LA COURSE:—The many readers of the News will be delighted to know that Forest Grove is up-to-date with New York, Boston, and Chicago in the line of Chiropody, Facial Massage, and Manicuring. This lady has followed the profession 7 years and practiced from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast. Ladies and gentlemen requiring services in this line will find Doctor Mademoiselle La Course O. K. She is late from Boston and is a graduate of the famous Madam May's Institute of Boston. She teaches students the profession reasonably, and prepares you for this remunerative business. Her parlors are located on Pacific Avenue and 4th Street, Mrs. Gus. Hartrampf, assistant.

O. L. CURTIS:—The many friends of this young man would naturally expect to see his name in this edition. He taught school for three years and is a graduate of Tualatin Academy. He carries the joyful news for Uncle Sam in the established Free Rural Delivery Route from Forest Grove. He takes an interest in the ennoblement of his fellows and plays his part faithfully in all the relations of life. We therefore accord him generous mention.

D. J. PORTER:—One of the representative business houses of Gaston is that operated by this gentleman. Mr. Porter has operated here for 20 years the 12th day of next October. He is an expert blacksmith and machinist and was the inventor and manufacturer of the famous Wapato plow. He is an old veteran of the Civil war and bears three wounds as marks of his loyalty to his country's flag. His sentiments are: "The Star Spangled banner, O! long may it wave,
And guard and protect us from youth to the grave.
May brave hearts rally round it and strong arms be its stay
Till it sweeps the last, long, lingering tyrant away,
And be what it "first" promised, when "first" unfurled
And be the EVANGEL of freedom to a down trodden world."
He is an enterprising type of the stirring sons of "Auld Scotia" and is one of Gaston's most reliable and esteemed residents.

ZIMMERMAN & WHITNEY:—This representative firm—state managers of the Modern Reserve Insurance Company, must be given a high place as we pass in review. Rev. George F. Zimmerman is at present supplying the pulpit of the Christian church of Forest Grove. He was five years in mission and pastorate work in Minnesota prior to pitching his tent on the Pacific coast. He is an able, eloquent, and earnest minister of the gospel, to whom we accord a very high place in these columns. Mr. Zimmerman, one of the state managers for the above named firm, is building a home in Forest Grove a convenient center to manage the Insurance business. He has received a well rounded education and ranks among the advanced thinkers of the day on social, economic and religious problems. We therefore award him a place of honor among the celebrities of this edition.

ALBERS BROS:—The milling interests of the Albers Bros. are ably represented in the person of Mr. J. L. Hunt. He has been with the company off and on during the past two years and has been located here for the season's business. The company operates extensively in oats, hay and grain, always paying the highest spot cash prices the market affords. Their enterprise is an important factor in the community and we therefore take pleasure in according it with their zealous representative a place of honor in these columns.

JOHNSON & CO:—One of the largest and best equipped livery establishments in Oregon is that operated by Mr. Johnson of Forest Grove. He commenced the livery business here seventeen years ago in a small way and has now an imposing brick structure 50x106, two stories high and a basement. He attends strictly to business and has learned the secret of building up your home town and enterprises. He has served the interests of the city on the council and never lags behind in dignified enterprises aiming at the well being of the community. He is a native Oregonian, born in Yamhill county.

PACIFIC COAST CONDENSED MILK CO:—An enterprise that commands much more space by rights, than can be assigned to it here in this brief review is the Pacific Coast Condensed Milk Co., of Forest Grove, Oregon. They have one of the most up-to-date and unique plants of the kind the writer ever was in. Their capacity for sterilizing is about 130,000 pounds of milk per day. Their Carnation Brand of sterilized cream is shipped all over and is one of the delicacies for home as well as travelling uses. For teas, coffees, cocoa, icecreams, berries, infants, invalids etc. Its medicinal value is exquisite, as it is absolutely guaranteed to be free from all adulterations and bacteria. The most modern methods and machinery are in vogue in this plant and Mr. H. H. Stuart, is superintendent. He has officiated in this capacity since the inception of the company and is one of Forest Grove's progressive business men and highly esteemed. Mr. E. S. Calender, local manager, attends strictly to business and the plant gives employment to a small army of work-people. The head office is at Seattle, Washington, and another large plant is established at Kent. It is with pleasure we accord these gentlemen a high place in these columns.

THE COLONIAL HOTEL:—The hotel facilities of Forest Grove will surpass those of any other town of the size in the entire state. The Colonial is a large, imposing new structure located at the depot, and is one of the well managed houses of Oregon. It was opened to the public last December, under the management of Mr. H. Villiger, a thoroughly experienced, practical and successful hotel man. The house commands its share of the commercial trade and a large local custom. Their rates are very reasonable and Mr. and Mrs. Villiger are a "host and hostess" that makes the strangers and travellers feel at home, contented, and in mighty good luck.

CRESCENT MILLS:—The milling interests of Forest Grove play a very important part of our city, and therefore must receive prominent mention. It is one of the high class established enterprises of Washington county. The head miller here, W. G. Jones, has followed the milling business for 35 years and is one of the experts of the trade on the Pacific Coast. He has been with the Crescent Mills one year and his reputation as a knight of the trade is well established. Their leading brand, Crescent Star, commands an immense sale and patronage wherever once used. We therefore award this enterprise high praise in these columns.

DR. J. P. FRIZELL:—Even the briefest resume of the life and career of Dr. Frizell of Gaston cannot fail of interest for it has been replete in interesting experiences in adventure, royalty and romance. The uniqueness of a life equally at home, on land or sea, whether among the "royal blood" or the untutored savage, the scholastic fraternity of the wise men of the East or West, the fleet footed ranger of the forest climbing the mountain steeps or the "devil" like sea lions or monsters of the Alaskan regions—all go to make up a part of the sum total of the experiences of this representative of the "Emerald Isle." He has practiced medicine in Gaston during the past eight months and has built up an excellent practice. He is a distinguished graduate of the King and Queen School of Physicians in Ireland. He has practiced in Alaska under U.S. Federal Government and was surgeon on the Spreckle Oceanic, steamship lines via China, Japan, Cuba etc.

POSTMASTER H. C. ATWELL:—Is a native of Vermont, and has resided in Forest Grove thirteen years, coming to the coast from Omaha, where he practiced law for several years. Since residing here, he has been engaged in fruitraising and teaching. Mr. Atwell took possession of the post office Oct. 1, 1900, and is a candidate for re-appointment. It is not likely that he will have any serious opposition, as he has given universal satisfaction, and his petition for re-appointment has been signed by nearly every voter in both precincts of Forest Grove. In this review we accord him a high position.

HOLLIS & HAWKS:—Are attorneys of the highest attainments in their profession. During their years practice in the city they have built for themselves a wide field of practice. Their success in the legal line is marvelous and they justly merit the confidence and esteem in which they are held by the most reliable business men in the county.
