Sayings by the "Devil"

Every time I see a wedding notice on the hook I wonder if the bridegroom ever made fun of a gold-brick sucker.

I never had a stomach ache on account of the green apples I didn't eat.

When I notice the difference between that boy "Frazzle" and his father it makes me think his mother is a mighty fine woman.

I notice that a widower and an old maid who knows her business are a pretty sure combination to win out in the matrimonial game.

I know a lot of fellows I'd be gladder to see if it didn't take them so long to make their getaway.

It's a lucky thing for some fellows that they can blame their red noses to the hay fever.

Pa has been working after six o'clock all summer keeping the lawn in shape, and he says he expects the cellar will keep him busy this winter.

It don't worry me so much to make a mistake once. They say babies learn to walk by falling down. It's when I make the same mistake twice in the same day that the foreman calls me down.
