THE "SHAKESPEARE" BIBLE.

Famous Book Sold at Auction to a

American for $1,050. At Sotheby's recently there was of fered for sale an imperfect copy of the Bible printed by R-Barker in 161: -the New Testament dated 1611valueless except for some MS. inscrip tions of more or less interest. The Bible belonged to W. Sharp Ogden, of Rusholme, Manchester, whose grandfather, a well-known collector of books and prints, bought it for a sovereign or two in 1850, and later refused $75 for it.

On the reverse of the title of the New Testament is "William Shakespeare, 1614," and on the end cover, "Willm. Shakspere, off S. O. A. (Stratford-on-Avon), his Bible, 1613." There are several other inscriptions, one of these showing that seventeen years after Shakespeare's death it belonged to John Fox, of Warwick. The catalogue also suggests some connection between Thomas Hall and James Hall, to whom, early in the eighteeuth century, the Bible belonged, and John Hall, who married Shakespeare's daughter. But no evidence on the point is forthcoming.

The pedigree of the book was regarded by dealers as satisfactory. As to the Shakespeare signatures, opinion of an American client for $1,000quite as much as was anticipated.

Several other classics of the sale room were also bought by private collectors for considerable sums, "Robinson Crusoe," with the "Further Adventures" and "Serious Recollections," thor's record established in 1903; the natural quota. 1685 folio Shakespeare, full, $505-$710 is the highest sum ever obtained for it under the hammer-and "The Vicar of Wakefield," 1776, published at 12s., $475.—London News.
