A special from Hood River to the Sunday Oregonian says: Mrs. Martha J. Woods died at Cleveland, Klickitat county, Wash., in her 78th year. She was the wife of Joseph W. Woods, and daughter of Richard and Caroline White. She was born in England, April 12, 1828, the family emigrating to America in 1835, and to Oregon across the plains in 1844. They settled on a donation claim at Reedville, Washington county, where in 1845, she was married to Joseph W. Woods. They continued to reside on a donation claim until February, 1884, when they moved to Klickitat county, Wash., where they have since resided.

Miss Anna Johnson, daughter of Mayor Johnson, went to Hood River Tuesday, with Miss Anna Jackson, who has been attending the Academy, and will be the latter's guest for a couple of weeks.

—It is no wonder the Bazaar people want to build a new brick building so as to get more room for stock. They are doing an immense business even in this season of the year when trade is dull everywhere. Every freight brings large shipments of the worlds famous Singer Sewing Machines and their trade in pianos and organs is also increasing on an alarming extent and the little Bazaar building can not hold the big shipments of instruments as fast as they come, so the manager, Prof. K. N. Staehr, has been compelled to store several pianos in private residences for the time being.

May Form Hop Pool.

Although a week has passed since the issuance of the circular letter to the hop growers of the Pacific Coast, New York and England, by the firm of Krebs Bros., of Salem, Ore., proposing the organization of a gigantic hop pool or corporation, President Conrad Krebs, of the firm, says he has received replies from almost every hop-growing section of this state, and that all spoke favorably of the proposition and pledged their hearty support. He has already received promises aggregating 25,000 bales of the 1905 crop of hops.

So far letters have been received from growers in the districts of Forest Grove, Woodburn, Dayton, Corvallis, Eugene, Amity, Oregon, and Cowlitz, Washington, while verbal assurances of support have been received from the growers of the Independence, Dalles, Champoeg, St. Paul, Aurora, Brooks districts and Washington and Yamhill counties. —Tradesman.

Stories of Old Oregon

We are indebted to the author of "Stories of Old Oregon," George A. Waggoner, for a copy of this book.

The stories are founded on facts and conditions as they existed here in 1852, the time when the author crossed the plains to Oregon, and are pictured in a pleasing language. It contains stories of the first settlements, mining, Indian fighting, and a series of hardships met with by the early pioneer, together with bits of history which were made at that time. Mr. Waggoner is a resident of Corvallis, and his writings are well worth reading.
