Miss Myrtle and Blanche Allen of Arnold, Neb., who have been visiting their uncle, M. L. Allen and family, and other relatives here for a few weeks, left this morning for their home by a southern route, and will visit extensively before returning. They are exceedingly well pleased with Oregon and its invigorating ozone, and we look for them back ere "the fodder is in the shock and frost is on the pumpkin." Mr. Allen accompanied them to Portland and after they visit the fair a few days will proceed on their journey.

Forest Grove lays claim to the largest fir tree in the world. The News says it is 41 feet in circumference, 13½ feet in diameter and contains enough lumber to build 17 good sized two story houses. Some attempt is being made to raise funds to have the tree cut and transported to the fair as an attraction. It is a shame to fell such a monarch of the forest and the Graphic would oppose such a movement if the tree stood near Newberg. Such a live hero pointing skyward for ages yet to come will be worth more to Forest Grove than a fallen one laid low to be gazed upon for a few short weeks at the Lewis and Clark Fair. "Woodman spare that tree."—Newberg Graphic.
