CENTENNIAL NOTES

Monday, October 9, has been set aside as Music Day at the Lewis and Clark Fair.

Wednesday, October 11, will be Pythian Day at the Lewis and Clark Fair, and the day will be fittingly celebrated.

The evening of the last day of the Lewis and Clark Exposition has been designated as Goode Night, in honor of H. W. Goode, president of the Exposition.

More than 1,000 chickens, and about 850 pigeons are entered in the poultry show at the Lewis and Clark Exposition. The dates for the exhibition are October 5 to 12 inclusive.

Ellery's Band, which has been engaged to play during the closing weeks of the Lewis and Clark Exposition, has made the hit of the season. Concerts are given, free to all, twice daily, and are largely attended.

There has been no complaint so far on account of extortionate hotel and restaurant charges, and late visitors at the Fair need have no fear of being unable to find excellent accommodations at reasonable rates.

With a fare-and-one-tenth rate in effect from towns in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and British Columbia, to Portland and return, and a cut of twenty per cent in the former special round trip rate from California points, there is every prospect that the closing weeks of the Lewis and Clark Exposition will be the most largely attended of any during the Fair period.

J. J. Underwood, home commissioner at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, has just received from Alaska, a specimen of tin ore weighing 450 pounds. The specimen contains 60 per cent tin, and is worth twenty cents a pound.

The total admissions to the Lewis and Clark Exposition up to September 27, was 2,066,545. It is expected that the grand total will be not less than 2,500,000 a better record than ever before was made by an enterprise of similar magnitude.

The Lewis and Clark Exposition closes at half past eleven o'clock Saturday night, October 14. It was originally intended that October 15, should be the closing day, but as this fell on Sunday, the change was made. The Fair has been a tremendous success.

The livestock show at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, which closed September 29, was the crowning feature of the Fair. It was much better attended than was the livestock show at St. Louis, and in some ways superior. The showing of shorthorns was the best ever made in America.

Notice.

Last week H. W. Baker of Salem, secretary of the state board of optometry, handed to District Atty Manning of Portland a list of eight men who had been selling glasses without state certificates. The allegation was made by Secretary Baker that several were practicing, although they had been refused certificates after attempting to pass the examinations prescribed by the law. Mr. Manning said that he would cause the issuance of complaints against any involved if evidence could be produced showing that they were continuing to practice after having been refused licenses. It would be well for persons purchasing glasses to be sure the optician has a license. It may save you the trouble of having to give testimony should the optician be prosecuted.
