Mr. Knapp is a drag road enthusiast, such as has been mentioned from time to time in The News. He came from a country that is now putting this mode of road building into practical use and says the results are wonderful. He believes that Washington county can do no better than to try this method, as the results are bound to be beneficial and at a remarkably low cost, and says right now is when it should be tried.

The editor of this paper can make affidavit to the fact that fish commonly called trout displayed a disposition to bite one day, along about the first of this week. We have known of fish, the same specie, doing the same thing on other occasions but they were safe, for the biggest "fish" commonly called a "bull-head," was on the other end of the apparatus. But not so in this case for that finny tribe bit at the hooks of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Buxton and before they stopped an even hundred had left the brook never to return again. How do we know? Just go and lick the sweat off our kitchen window. Thanks Jake.
