THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1905.

It is rumored around through this section of the state that certain newspapers are sending their agents to call upon the various candidates for congressional and state offices and offering, if not insisting, upon the candidate buying space in their paper and paying them as high as $500 for such space. It strikes us, that if there is a newspaper in Oregon that will take that method of holding up candidates for office it should be given all publicity possible, and notice served upon such candidate that permits himself thus to be held up and "grafted" by that kind of a grafter that he is unfit for the office he seeks and that the public will be informed and fully advised.

SALVATION IN GOOD ROADS

We recommend our good brothers in this county that dispense the Gospel from the pulpit every Sunday morning and evening to read the editorial in last Friday's Oregonian, entitled, "Roads as a Means of Grace." It is well worth reading, and the truths therein set forth should find secure lodgment in every mind, and after finding lodgment there should be put into practical use. If ever there was or is a county where much wickedness abounds on account of bad roads it must be Washington County.

Here are a few features of the Oregonian's editorial, "Roads as a Means of Grace."

"The worst enemies to religion in America are mud roads running up and down hill."

"Millions of souls in the United States now irretrievably lost would today be rejoicing in a happy salvation if they had not been kept from the means of grace by mud holes in the road."

"What pleases Satan above all things is to see a saint trying to drive over an Oregon dirt road in winter with a load of potatoes. He knows that within the next ten minutes that saint will be a saint no longer. He will be a howling, raging, blasphemous, back-slidden sinner."

"A horse can haul twice as much over gravel as over the best dirt road and four times as much over smooth stone. He can haul at least ten times as big a load over gravel as he can through deep mud."

"Sad is the fate of a farmer living at the end of a bottomless road. His sons leave him and go to town; his daughter never has a beau and grows up an old maid; his wife goes crazy, his house goes to ruin and he goes broke."

"On a good, level road a horse has to throw on his collar one thirty-fifth of the load he hauls. A grade of only three per cent doubles his work."

THE LUXURY OF HONESTY

Honesty of purpose appears to be popular. The belief which we like to entertain that the world is growing better as it grows older is unmercifully jarred occasionally by the examples of prosperous tergivers constantly thrust upon our notice. Roosevelt, Jerome and Folk are inspirations to those who want to be honest, but who sometimes wonder if they can afford the luxury of contented minds, clear consciences and quiet sleep.

Uncompromising honesty has always been a valuable asset. Perhaps this has been due to the fact that this characteristic has been too common. If a young lawyer would get the very best of everything there is in his professional career let him be one of the few. Industry you must have, ability you may have and honesty you may have if you will. But do not carry away the idea that uncompromising honesty is easy to practice, no matter how well you may have been brought up if you are without money and are trying to make your own way. Dr. Franklin repeated the immortal old saw that "it is hard to make an empty sack to stand up straight." The temptations in the path of a young lawyer, for instance, whose landlord threatens to dispossess him, at the same time that the telephone company give him three days to pay up or have the service discontinued, just as he made a collection which he ought to remit to his client immediately, are harrowing. If he resists the temptation to overcharge his client, or to appropriate directly the client's money to his own use he becomes like tempered steel, stronger for having been through the fire.

Recent events show that honesty has become popular and leads to fame and good jobs, therefore, where is the sense in being otherwise?

The old adage, "honesty is the best policy" never can be successfully contradicted.

Mrs. Martha C. Parr Passes Away.

Friday morning, after an illness of two weeks, Mrs. Martha C. Parr died at her home in South Park in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Parr came here last October from Indiana. Besides her husband, Mrs. Parr leaves five children, two boys and three girls. She was born Nov. 18, 1867. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the late home of the deceased, with Rev. L. F. Belknap of the M. E. church as officiating clergyman. The interment was at the Naylor cemetery.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for kind assistance and help given us during the illness of our beloved wife and mother.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is what does it all. It's a wonder worker for favorite ailments. It is Nature's remedy, adapted to the needs of twentieth century women.

NO ALCOHOL, NO NARCOTIC, NO INJURIOUS DRUG. Made of glyceric extracts from roots, therefore their virtues grew in them in Nature's laboratory. viz: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, and Golden Seal root; extracted, combined, preserved without alcohol, by Doctor Pierce's own peculiar process, and in the most exact proportions to secure the best effects.

If in need of careful, competent advice before beginning treatment, you will receive it without charge by writing, and stating your case, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 693 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. All letters confidentially received and answers sent in securely sealed envelopes.

"I was a great sufferer for six years," writes Mrs. Geo. Sorden, of 641 Bond Street, Saginaw, Mich. "I commenced to take your Favorite Prescription" and have taken ten bottles in all. Am now regular, after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not eat or sleep. Now I can thank you for my recovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.
