Andrew Johnson's Writing.

The letters of President Taylor are rare, but perhaps those of Andrew Johnson are the rarest, as he did but little of his own writing. His son conducted most of his correspondence and signed his father's name to the letters. It is related that one reason why President Johnson wrote so little was owing to an accident which happened to him when he was working at his trade as tailor. One day a tailor's heavy iron goose fell on his arm, so injuring that member that he found it extremely difficult to indulge in penmanship thereafter. Andrew Johnson was the poorest writer among the presidents as well as the rarest. His handwriting was very much of a scrawl and can scarcely be deciphered by the average reader.

The election resulted as follows: President, Harry West of Scappoose; first vice-president, Wilbur H. Newell of Dilley; second vice-president D. Porozzi of Ashland; treasurer and secretary, Prof. Kent of Corvallis. The convention will hold its annual session at Ashland on the second Tuesday in December. The former date was too near Christmas to warrant large attendance.

H. H. Stuart of the Carnation Condensed Milk Co., and Dr. J. P. Tamiesie of the Oregon Grape Condensed Milk Co., extended cordial invitations to the dairymen to visit their establishments. After the business session, many of the delegates took
