Ding! Dong! Watch out for the cars! Speaking of orations—the college orators.

Pray for Walla Walla! It is infested with that ranting, shouting sect known as "Holy Rollers."

How about that pay roll? Are you willing to help secure it? Sprayed your trees yet?

What show company will get stranded here next? Do you know in what fire ward you are living?

Skaters who like to glide around on wheels will be right at home in a few days.

Indignant readers come and go but the Chronicler's pencil goes on forever.

What is a knocker? A Portland firm gives the answer in its ad. For Chief Joe, call 3-0-2!

The cub feels that it will be but a short time until the good people (and they're all good) of this town will be saying they "want off" a street car.

There are two kinds of grip. One is a traveling bag, the other is an excuse for drinking hot lemonade with a stick in it.

The latter sort may become a serious epidemic under the new regime.

The Portland preacher who was recently held up by a highway man and robbed of his watch and a 50-cent piece, and who had the courage to preach him a sermonette is to be heartily congratulated.

The sermon was effective and timely for the highwayman handed the minister his watch and money and left him without further remark.

Dr. Strange is a dentist by profession and was formerly connected with the Roseburg Plainedealer and lived in Forest Grove for a time several years ago. His son, Dale, was a student in the college here.

E. H. Parker and wife of St. Johns, have been the guests of their son, J. N. Parker, the past week. They also made a short visit with friends at Gaston, their former home. Mr. Parker is enthusiastic over St. John's apparent prosperity, but is glad to return to Forest Grove and meet old-time friends and neighbors. He is informed of the doings of this community through The News of which he has been a subscriber since its inception.

There is one pretty safe rule for every Republican aspirant to follow—don't say anything about your opponent that will make it difficult for you to support him if he should win the nomination. Members of the rank and file of the party are free to discuss all the candidates at will, but the candidates themselves should remember that all cannot win, and that the party expects the losers in the primaries to be loyal supporters of the nominees in the campaign prior to the general election.—Sunday Oregonian.
