REST ROOM FREE TO ALL

Opened in Connection With Free Reading Room—Will Prove of Service to Country People

An innovation which will receive the approval of the country people, in general, is the opening of a rest room in connection with the free reading room. People from the surrounding communities who come to this city to do trading will thus have a cozy and comfortable place where they can rest or wait until ready to do their purchasing. Brushes, towels and other necessities will be provided for those who would care to use them. The rest room comes to fill a long-felt want and the Civic Improvement Society is to be commended for introducing it and opening it to the public.

It is to be understood that the accommodations of the rest room are free to all who may wish to avail themselves of the privileges offered. It is hoped that the country folks will feel entirely free to use the room.

Has Clear Conscience

WALLA WALLA, Wash.—President Penrose, of Whitman College, returned today from a trip through Eastern Washington, and when shown the letter of President Ferrin, of Pacific University, said: "I do not think it is worth while to answer the letter, as I object to newspaper controversies and cannot help the opinion which President Ferrin seems to have concerning Whitman College. The main thing is that our conscience is entirely clear in the matter."—Telegram.

Just what has been gained by this newspaper controversy between the presidents of these two Congregational institutions whose relations heretofore have been most friendly, is not at all clear. It can hardly be said that three students more or less affect materially the student body of any college. Does football play so important a part in a college's endeavors as to give it such undue prominence in the newspapers? If Pacific favors clean athletics let her adhere to that policy irrespective of what other colleges may do. The sooner the controversy is dropped the better it will be for all concerned.

Mrs. Montague and son Robert, of Portland, spent last week in this city visiting her father, Mr. R. Miller and daughter, Miss Nona.
