

Chas. V. Galloway Speaks

The campaign for the June election was opened last evening in this city, in an arousing meeting by Chas. V. Galloway, democratic nominee for Congressman in the First District.

A Sanitary Suggestion

The man who collected rubbish for the city last week had some disagreeable jobs.

One was gathering up empty condensed cream cans, in which the milk or cream remaining, had putrified.

Perhaps few realize the close connection between typhoid fever and such decaying matter.

A good way to get rid of objectionable refuse is to dig a deep hole, gradually filling in the earth removed as a purifier. Bury your old cream cans.

"Our City Beautiful."

The City Fathers did a good bit of house-cleaning last week, for it took a few days instead of one to cart away accumulated rubbish. There is still much to be desired in the way of lowering our motto, "The City Beautiful," if we are to attract as permanent residents the class of citizens, who will help to make Forest Grove not only the "prettiest town in Oregon," but the thriftest commercially, the cleanest and healthiest.

Many a fine house loses cast by rubbish in the gutter, while many an ample home gives more pleasure to the eye, and speaks of thrift within by its tidy dooryard and clean sidewalk. Beautiful private grounds, cleanliness of streets, are a moral up-lift to every man, woman or child who passes by or through them.

One public spirited P. U. man was recently seen gathering into a newspaper, the rubbish he found along his way, much to the apparent amusement of beholders. Let him be commended. If we are a real city why don't we enforce a law which shall make such disagreeable work unnecessary? The business blocks about the Post office have furnished two waste paperrels, emulating a tidy custom of many of our large cities, that there should be no excuse for carelessly throwing waste matter about the streets. Other business sections would do the same, there might be much improvement in our main streets.

"All hail to our City Beautiful!" F. F.

"World Citizenship."

A very helpful and inspiring talk on missions was given Sunday evening, at the Congregational Church, by Mrs. Thurston, the travelling secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement in the United States. Her subject was, "World Citizenship." She called attention to the many world movements of the present day. We are citizens of a locality, not of a country, but of a world. As such we must realize our privilege and our responsibility. Our tendency is to accept the former and neglect the latter. In discussing the responsibility of a world citizen she spoke first of the importance of intelligent citizenship. It is our business to become informed concerning the needs of our fellow citizens, and the remedy for those needs. The only thing which will meet the needs of humanity, physical, intellectual, social and spiritual, is Christianity. It is impossible that Christians are so selfish that if they realized these needs, they would not respond.

Our second responsibility as citizens is to pay our taxes. If each citizen paid his proportionate share toward the work of missions, the financial problem would be solved.

Third, we have a responsibility in service. If we are loyal to our King, we will enter His service. The only hindrances now are at home; there are no closed doors—every country is waiting for the message. The call to service comes to every one—it may be to give, it may be to go, or it may be to let go—to send some loved one. In any case it is a call to service. How will we meet our responsibility?—Weekly Index.

Heard in the Council Chambers—"The skating rink is an abomination."

The present condition of the Pacific Coast Baseball League seems to be very similar to that of the Forest Grove Board of Trade.

Although it is likely that Galloway was never at Verboort before, the way he handled the voters in that section last Sunday bespeaks of some qualities as a politician, which his elder brethren could emulate with a considerable degree of success.

The council should tread more carefully. They are liable to impose upon the good nature of some of our citizens who are not so enthusiastic over some recent moves made by the council. History will repeat itself and a wet ticket will be elected again at the next election and all the good work of this council will be swept away just on account of some careless measures such as that skating rink ordinance.

Our town is a model in civic pride as is evidenced by our citizens' words—but what about their actions? On the block in which the postoffice is located were two cans, placed there to receive waste paper and other rubbish. Between the two was a hole with a railing around to keep the inhabitants from falling in and breaking their necks. "All hail to our city beautiful."

Motor Car No. 4 a Failure

Last Thursday afternoon the second motor car provided by the Union Pacific for the Harriman Lines in Oregon was put on the West Side Line for a trial trip.

The motor is a neatly equipped car with well upholstered seats capable of holding 50 people. The engineer controls the car from a position in the extreme front, where the gasoline engine, which propels the car, is located. A trailer for baggage and mail was towed along behind and although unique, the whole equipage presented a very neat appearance. The motor and its trailer were red and the car came to a point at the front like a torpedo while the trailer was round at the back.

The car arrived in Forest Grove with Vice President, J. P. O'Brien, aboard. Just about the time the 4:16 train from the south was due, but when the news came that the car could not make the Fourth St. grade and little interest was manifested in the car by the small group of citizens gathered at the depot to await its coming.

Mr. O'Brien took the train back to Portland, while the motor went up the line presumably to try the Yamhill Division, as it is unfit for service on the West Side. The Fourth Street grade is a bad one and Forest Grove cannot hope to have an immediate service such as this car would have given, if it would have proven itself capable of making that grade.

CAMELS OUTDONE.

Features That Go For Extended Periods Without Drinking.

Other creatures than the camel are able to get along for extended periods without drinking. Sheep in the southwestern deserts go for forty to sixty days in winter without drink, grazing on the green, succulent vegetation of that season. Peculiarities in the desert of Sonora live in little dry hills where there is no natural water for long periods. They cannot possibly find water in fact, for months at a time. The only moisture they can obtain comes from roots and the fruits of cacti, but the most extraordinary case is that of the pocket mouse, one of the common rodents of the desert. This little creature, by the way, has a genuine fur lined "pocket" on the outside of its cheek. When it is hungry it takes food from this pocket with its paw, just as a man would pull a ham sandwich from his pocket. One of these mice has been kept for three years with no other food than the mixed bird seed of commerce. During this period it had not a taste of either water or green food. Other experimenters have found, in fact, that these mice in captivity refuse such treats, not seeming to know that water is good to drink. The bird seed put before this mouse contained not more than 10 per cent of moisture, which is less than is necessary for digestion. Stuff so dry as this cannot even be swallowed until it is moistened by saliva. Yet this remarkable mouse gave nothing but his time to the interests of science. He suffered nothing in health or spirits during his captivity.—Brooklyn Eagle.

SYMPATHETIC LISTENERS

The Help They May Afford to Slow and Indifferent Talkers.

At no time more than when a thought is struggling toward expression should a friend bear with a friend's infirmities. A deep sympathy should be poured out with lavish affection about the one who is seriously striving to say some real thing. In this atmosphere of patient, sympathetic intelligence the inept word, the crude phrase, the wholly inadequate expression will be enabled to do their work, and the thought which will be safely lodged in the mind of the other, slightly bruised in transit, but intact and intelligible. With an "I know what you mean," "Exactly," or "Go on; I understand," much help may be rendered, and at last when the thinker of the thought has placed his friend in possession and by reason of this effort has entered into fuller possession of it himself, the conversation is in a way to begin. Then lavish upon the elaboration of the thought all the beauties that can be woven out of words—precision, balance, music—but let us, dear lovers of language, remember to be discreetly gentle and listen with averted glance while the thought is still in negligence.—Atlantic.

The Cellars of Bordeaux.

The cobwebs will seem to an impressionable visitor the noblest things in the Bordeaux cellars. Some of them look like thick pile curtains, somber in hue, of course, but famously suggestive of warmth. And with even only a moderate imagination one may go to and fro among the barrels fancying the pendant shapes overhead are dusky stalactites instead of the airy next to nothing as they really are. If you hold your candle high enough you may shrivel a few yards of the fabric. But that were truly a shocking deed of vandalism, for, though no layman can understand why this dismal tapestry is revered as it is, his ignorance will not be held sufficient excuse for his crime.—Chambers' Journal.

Marriage by Proxy.

In Holland, says a Scotch paper, marriage by proxy is allowed. This is the so called "marriage by the glove" and is usually put in practice by a Dutchman who is sojourning abroad and, wanting a wife, is too poor or too far off to return home for one. In such a case he writes home to a lawyer, who selects one conformable to the requirements of his client. If the gentleman approves he next sends the lawyer a soiled left hand glove and a power of attorney, which settles the business. A friend marries the woman by proxy, and she is thereafter promptly shipped off to her new home.

What a "Hurricane" is. "Hurricane" is the old Spanish name for a West Indies cyclone, but it is used by modern meteorologists to designate a long continued wind of extreme violence. In Beaumont's scale the different winds are classed as "light," "gentle," "fresh" and "strong" breezes. The next is a "stiff" breeze, then a "strong" wind and then we strike the "gales." The "gales" run through three or four classes, the last merging into the "hurricane."

Sudden. "This is so sudden," she murmured weakly. The messenger boy had answered her call within five minutes of her ringing him up.—Baltimore American.

Stingy. "Mr. Linger spends a great deal of time with you, Molly," said Miss Etch to Miss Frocks. "Yes, but that's all he does spend."

It Happened in Vineland.

"Shay, uff'er," the man with the liquid burden remarked to the policeman, "shee all 'em houses runnin' by humoredly, 'I see them."

"Well, when num'r six-twenty come 'long shtop it, cause 'at's mine," Philadelphia Ledger.

Duty.

Duty stands for the most part at hand, unobscured, simple, immediate. If any man has the will to be her voice, to him is she willing to be tender and to be his ready guest.—Frank Peabody.
