Greater Attractions Than Ever Before—Large Attendance Expected This Year.

The Thirteenth Annual Assembly of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Association will meet at Gladstone Park, Oregon City, July 10 to 22, 1906. The meeting promises to be the greatest and best in the history of the Association. A large array of talent has been procured, composed of poets, orators, musicians, athletes, teachers, artists, professional entertainers, famous lecturers singers and story-tellers, both men and women—among them being such noted characters as Captain Jack Crawford, the Poet Scout; Leon Harrison, the most popular Jewish Rabbi in America; Martha Gielow with her "Old Plantation Songs and Stories;" Miss Belle Kearney, the greatest woman orator of the South; Professor Baumgardt, the great astronomer; Mark Beal, reader and impersonator. To enumerate them all would fill columns.

Among the special attractions will be a musical program never excelled in Oregon, including the leading soloists of the state and a chorus of a hundred voices and twenty one instrumentalists in Hayden's Oratorio, "The Creation," on Saturday, July 14, besides another great evening of oratorio from Mendelssohn on Saturday, July 21, all under the instruction of Prof. W. Gifford Nash. No one can afford to miss the daily schools of art, music, elocution, domestic science, history, and literature, to say nothing of the classes in physical culture, kindergarten, Bible study, and various special departments conducted by clubs and colleges. An admission fee of $2.00 for a season ticket admits you to all these privileges, including camping rights of which many hundreds avail themselves every year. Last year, during the time of the Fair even, the average daily attendance reached 4000 when it was estimated at 3000 and this year with no Fair, the attendance will be much greater. AN ENJOYABLE OCCASION
 Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary.
 Last Saturday the occasion of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Smith's golden wedding anniversary was celebrated at the Michigan House and over thirty guests including relatives, joined in making the function a very enjoyable one. The rooms were tastefully decorated in yellow and the guests were served a delicious lap lunch, a prominent part of which was a big golden cake. Many presents were received and after the lunch Mr. L. C. Walker made some very fitting remarks. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married in Illinois and crossed the plains over thirty-five years ago. They started one of the first hotels in town and have run the Michigan House almost continuously for twenty years. Their sons, J. D. Smith, warden of the penitentiary at Walla Walla, and Dewitt Smith of Hillsboro, attended the wedding feast.

LIKE MILITARY POLICE.

Pocahontas Guards For Use at the Jamestown Exposition.
 A select body of well trained men for service at the Jamestown Exposition will constitute the Pocahontas Guards. Their duties, like those of a military police, will be to guard and protect property at the Exposition and guide and direct visitors at the Exposition. These special guards have been found necessary at every big exposition. Their multitudinous duties require vigilance and tact, as well as courage and discretion. They will constitute the police force of the Exposition and will be on duty during the entire Exposition period and for several months prior to the opening of Exposition gates to the public.
 The Pocahontas Guards will be a military organization, maintained by the Exposition Company and will be commanded by Capt. Henry W. Carpenter, of the United States Marine Corps, whom the Government has detailed for this work.
 The pay of the Pocahontas Guards has not yet been determined, but it will be sufficient to enable the Exposition to get the services of good men. They will be handsomely uniformed and well drilled and kept up to a high standard of efficiency, it being the intention of Capt. Carpenter to make the Pocahontas Guards the finest body of military police ever seen at any exposition in America or elsewhere.

Professor Coghill Resigns

The resignation of Prof. C. E. Coghill, head of the Biological department of Pacific University, Tuesday evening, created no little surprise among the students, faculty and business men of the Grove. The resignation of the Prof. was the result of his inability to agree with certain policies of the school, and rather than compromise his judgment, tendered his resignation. A petition requesting an investigation into the trouble has been circulated and signed by a large number of the business men of our city and his friends.
 Dr. Coghill came here four years ago from Brown University and has done good work here. He has a national reputation as a scientific writer and is a contributor to one of the largest biological periodicals in America. He is a fine citizen, a splendid man and a hard student, and it is hoped that matters may be adjusted in such a manner that he will remain with the school.

Commencement Concert.

Last night Mrs. Pauline Miller Chapman appeared for the last time in concert before a Forest Grove audience before leaving for Europe where she will study under a German voice artist. Mrs. Chapman has always won the hearts of her audience with her sweet rich mezzo soprano voice, but never before has her singing seemed quite so soul inspiring as last evening. She was applauded again and again for encores but when she sang by request "Oh Dry Those Tears," the heart of the audience was quickened; and the people cheered and cheered till she returned to repeat the beautiful effort. Miss Anna Ditchburn of Portland, is a charming singer, her pleasing personality and choice of selections proved a double treat. Mr. F. Konrad and Prof. F. R. Chapman in cello and violin solos, were a great delight and Miss Wagner proved her skill as an accompanist.

Seniors Graduate With Honors

Brighton Chapel was filled to the doors this morning with alumni, out-of-towns people, citizens and friends to hear the Forty-fourth Graduating Anniversary exercises of Pacific University. The auditorium was beautifully decorated with ferns and ivy and an ocean of rich flowers was brought by the commencement-goers to their graduate friends of the class of 1906. There were eight graduates—four men and four women, and each one of them has been an honor to the institution. Some have been leaders in oratory and debate; others have managed different student affairs and edited the college paper, and so the keen interest shown in the graduates of '06, by applause after applause—is nothing but a just reward for their services to the institution.
 The eight orations were eight well worked out themes and showed much careful study.
 Mr. Fletcher was the first speaker with "The Problem of the South" as his subject. The condition of the South is inferior to that of the North; it is due to the presence of the negro. The South must solve the problem for itself. The solution will be brought about by industrial training and education of the negro.
 Miss Livia E. Ferrin was the second speaker, dwelling upon "Art and the American People." Miss Ferrin traced the history of art in this country and showed that the American school has an individuality of its own. It is simply an expression of the American life and with the culture of the people comes the refinement of American Art.
 Daniel D. Bump's oration was on "The Value of Individuality." Individuality has been the attribute that has brought man from barbarism to civilization. It develops him mentally, morally and spiritually. The development of society depends upon the development of the individual.

Miss Clara Irvin followed with "Dante's Message through the Div Comedy." The setting of Miss Irvin's oration was Florence, the native city of the great poet of the middle ages, Dante Alighieri. After a description of the city and the conditions under which this great literary production was given to the world, Miss Irvin explained the poem and applied it to practical life today.
 Mr. Arthur J. Prideaux discussed "The Evolution of Public Conscience." His introduction was a dramatic picture of the sufferings at Valley Forge, which was an expression of the heroism of public conscience. The conscience of the individual stands back of public conscience—the evolution of the latter depends upon the evolution of the former.
 Miss Frances Sorensen's theme was "The Correlation of Science and Religion." The motives of primitive religion and science were the same. There was misunderstanding and conflict; but now the one has recognized the relation to the other, and both tending to work in harmony.
 Mr. Wirtz was the seventh on the program with "The Simple Life" as his subject. He painted a dramatic picture of the Puritan home and modern banquet, the simple life of the sham life. The simple life is real life, the life with all false wrappings torn away, the life that is antagonistic to graft and false ideals.
 W. B. Rasmussen had a scholarly production on "The Growth of State Interference." The constitution is founded on principles of freedom of the individual and property. This was an era of individualism and organization which forced the state to interfere. It is not socialism but judicious state interference.
 At the close of the orations Mr. Chapman sang soulfully, "Hear Israel" from Elijah. The candidates for degrees were: D. D. Bump, cum laude; Chester K. Fletcher, magna cum laude; Livia E. Ferrin, magna cum laude; Clara I. Irvin, cum laude; Arthur J. Prideaux, magna cum laude; William B. Rasmussen, cum laude; Frances T. Sorensen, cum laude; Willard H. Wirtz, cum laude.
