Rich Indians.

If it be permitted to call an Indian tribe a "people," as that term is used in statistical matters, some of them, it is said, are the richest in the world. According to figures that the editor saw recently, the English are the richest civilized people in the world, with an average, per capita, of $1,266. France comes next, with an average of $1,102, and the United States third, with an average of $1,029; but some of the Indian tribes out west, by reason of the sale of their lands to the government, are worth, it is said, from $5,000 to $10,000 per capita.

Chickens at Sunday School. A bright and winsome little girl, daughter of one of the editor's friends. was sent out to the hen-house one day recently, to gather and bring in the fresh eggs, but she came back almost mmediately without any eggs, and when her mother asked about them, the little one answered :

"Well, mother, the chickens were holding Sunday school, and I would not disturb them."

The mother afterward found out that the hens were all cackling at the top of their jungs, and this made the Sunday school.

The Lobster's Color.

Did you ever hear of the young ousekeeper who refused to buy fresh lobster at the market because it was not bright red in color? And of the poet's bad blunder, who called it "the cardinal of the sea?" The point of the joke is that the young housekeeper and the poet both though that bons, and in that way they will find red was the lobster's natural color. As most of you know, perhaps, the natural color of the shell is a mixture of two pigments, red and blue. When it

Mahtab III is the only Krhattriya prince in India, and is the head of that community. His fortune is vast, even for an Indian prince, and he supports at his own cost a college at Burdwan, where free education is imparted to the youth of his realm up to the first arts standard; a high school at Kaina and a free Sanskrit college and a girl's school at Burdwan,

The prince also maintains at a great cost annually many temples at Burdwan and Kalna. At these the poor are fed daily. He also supports almshouses, where rice and flour are disis bolled, the blue "washes out," and tributed daily to all who apply.

CHINESE AND THE COMPASS.

Very Probable that They or Some Other Asiatics Discovered It. Some Asian people, perhaps the Chl-discovered, many centuries ago, that a kind of iron ore possessed a very peculiar quality, says a writer in Harper's Magazine. We call this ore magnetic or, in more common language, lodestone, and it is very widely distributed, especially in the older crystalline rocks. It was found that if a bit of lodestone were placed in water upon a piece of cork or straw braid it would turn till the axis of the stone assumed a north and south position. A phe-

The Faith of the Boy.

The four-year-old son of a certain western senator had a very high opinion of the importance of his father. The latter tells how, on one occasion In their western home, the lad came across a magazine in which, by some chance, there were engraved side by side portraits of the President and the Senator mentioned.

When the lad caught sight of his father's features he broke into a broad smile. "That's a good picture of you, daddy," said he.
