chuckled and Treasurer Hudson said that he was absolutely up against it in collecting dues from the suffering public. "Well, said the Mayor, "I have bought just five gallons of Rockefeller's best and two dozen candles this last month," Hollinger was very sympathetic with the remark that he had to fill the lamp every 24 hours, and the complaint went thus and so around the whole table not to exclude the good natured Bedford Laughlin, and a rebate of 60 per cent was moved. Some thought that this was just a little high and the house divided against itself again. The mayor however prevented the fall by casting the deciding vote for the proposition. Council adjourned to meet next Tuesday.
