How the National Forests Serve the Public.

"The Use of the National Forests," a publication just printed by the Department of Agriculture, is a brief, clear manual for public information as to the forest policy of the National Government.

It is too true, as the short preface to the public says, that "many people do not know what National Forests are. Others may have heard much about them, but have no idea of their true purpose and use." It is the object of this publication to explain just what the National Forests mean, what they are for and how to use them.

In the first place, it is explained how the Forests are created and how their boundaries are drawn. Next, their direct use and value are shown from the point of view of the homeseeker, the prospector and miner, the user of timber, the user of the range, the user of water, and the user of Forest resources. Third, it is shown how the Forests are intended for use, for the production of usable products, and for the establishment and maintenance of homes; how on all of them the timber is protected from fire, the water flow is kept steady, the forage on the range is increased and guarded from abuse; and how, in addition, they serve as great public playgrounds and as breeding places and refuges for game. Finally, the management of the National Forests is described.

Here it is that the great usefulness of the Forests is brought out most clearly and strikingly; for the Forests are managed by the people in their own interests, and every means is used to meet the desires and wants of all Forest users half way by dealing with them in the main directly on the ground and in all cases with the utmost dispatch and freedom from red tape.

In a word, the special interest of this manual lies in showing that the Forest policy of the Government, both in principle and in practise, is for the benefit of the ordinary man, for the benefit of every citizen equally. There is still a tendency to think of the National Forests as "preserves" closed to use, and to leave the public lands exposed to unregulated individual exploitation. Where these misapprehensions still prevail "The Use of the National Forests" will go far to correct them.

The book is written by Mr. Frederick E. Olmstead, whose intimate knowledge of the conditions in the West and the policy under which the National Forests are managed especially fits him to deal with the subject.

Washington County an Example.

Following is an excerpt from the speech of State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bailey, before the Chamber of Commerce of Clatsop County recently. The speaker takes Washington County as an example to show what the rest of the state can do:

"What has been said about the supply and the demand of the dairy industry in general will apply with equal force to the possibilities of evaporated or condensed milk. In order to show what has been done in this line I will go back five years, at which time there was not a can of condensed milk put up in this state, but that was imported here from the dairy sections of the east and from California. But about that time, and after two or three years of hard work the Pacific Coast Condensed Milk Co. concluded to put a plant at Forest Grove. The most that was expected at that time was that they would supply the home market, including the Alaska trade, and possibly some to the Orient. Today we find this company has grown and expanded, and enlarged until it now owns five large condensing plants. Two in Oregon and three in Washington. The most surprising part of it is the fact that they are able to pay a higher price for their milk here than is paid in the dairy sections of the east, and yet furnish that market with the finished product, and their desire today is not for more market, but for more milk to supply the markets they already have, and which they have found in the middle and eastern states, and all through the south as well as California and Alaska. This company is today taking in at their factories in Hillsboro and Forest Grove 130,000 pounds of milk daily and for this the farmers within a radius of a few miles of these factories will receive in round numbers one-half million dollars this year, to say nothing of the army of men, women and children who find employment at these factories throughout the entire year. And this is not all. The farms upon which this milk is produced are growing richer and more valuable year by year and will continue to do so as long as dairying is practiced and that could have been bought in that section five years ago for fifty dollars an acre now sells readily for three times that amount. I will further say that the proprietors of these factories have faith in the future of the business and are now showing their faith by doubling the capacity of the Hillsboro plant.

STATE ACTIVITY NOTES.

Portland is fairly alive with tourists and this will continue for the next two weeks from among the delegates who are in attendance upon the convention of the National Educational Association, the Christian Endeavor and the Baptist Young People. The Commercial Club is especially active in circulating copies of its $5000 prize offer to these delegates.

The colonist rates go into effect September 1st and continue until October 31st. This is the rate that brings the actual settlers to Oregon and means that people can come to this State from Kansas City, St. Paul, Minneapolis and all the great territory between the Missouri River and the Rocky Mountains for $25; (To all points east of Umatilla, $22.50.) St. Louis $30; from Chicago $33. It should be borne in mind that the most important thing of all is that these people must buy their tickets direct to the towns they want to reach. This is true with regard to Medford, Eugene, The Dalles, Astoria and every other city or town in Oregon. Many people get the impression that they can come to Portland and then continue their trip to point of destination, and it devolves upon each and every community in Oregon to advertise this fact, and through the correspondence and advertising of their people, get new settlers.

Through the assistance of the Commercial Club, Mr. J. D. Lee, President of the Oregon Pioneer Association, forwarded photographs of Mrs. Mary Ramsey Lemons Wood, aged 120 years, who was crowned Queen of Oregon on the 4th of July, also of General George H. Williams, who performed the ceremony, to 150 of the leading papers of the United States, accompanied by a story which will call to mind the splendid health giving qualities of the Oregon climate. The red fires which burned on the summits of Mt. Hood, St. Helens and Adams were plainly visible from Portland.

The dinner to the Hon. James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior, at the Commercial Club Saturday night, the 13th inst. promises to be the most representative affair of its kind given thus far during 1907. The following Monday Vice President Fairbanks will be entertained at dinner at Seaside by the citizens of Astoria and invited guests.

The Charleston and the Paul Jones, of the Pacific Coast Naval Station, participated in the Fourth of July festivities, to be present during the visit of Vice President Fairbanks.

Must Smoke a Pipe.

No more cigarettes in Washington after September 1. The law forbidding the trafficking of the little substitutes for cigars passed by the last legislature, will be operative in a little less than two months. It was the outcome of the work of the committee on public morals, Representative Byers, chairman, and is as follows:

"That it shall be unlawful for any person, by himself, clerk, servant, employe or agent, directly or indirectly, upon any pretense or by any device, to manufacture, sell, exchange, barter, dispose of or give away or keep for sale, any cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette wrappers or any paper made or prepared for the purpose of being filled with tobacco for smoking; and any person, for violation of the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall, for the first offence, pay a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50 and cost of prosecution and stand committed in the county jail until such costs of prosecution are paid; and for the second and each subsequent offence, shall pay, upon conviction thereof, a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 and costs of prosecution, or be imprisoned in the county not to exceed six months. Provided that the provisions hereof shall not apply to the sales of jobbers doing an interstate business with customers outside the state.

Wm. Dunsmoor who formerly ran a grocery store in this city has opened up a similar establishment at Hubbard.
