As another indication that the present money "flurry" is only temporary and has not the significance of a total eclipse, as hinted by some newspapers, the meeting of the business men in Portland and over the state which decided against a special session of the legislature will signify.

The Corvallis Republican suggests that the governor call a holiday during banking hours each day. This would relieve the banks and give other people a chance to do business. The courts might hold right sessions, which would help them.—Hillsboro Independent.

Why not let the banks change their business hours to the night and let the people and courts proceed as usual. That would help some more.

The gold, we are told, has faded. Doubtless. We read it in many of our country exchanges. We note, however, that Mr. Bryan doesn't say so. He has traveled round the world. But, if the gold standard has failed—and we are willing to be shown—let us have a leader. What should be the standard? We suggest leather. It will make a good money, and is cheap. Shot-gun wads for five-cent pieces. An ornamental medal for the dollar.—Oregonian.

[Gov. Chamberlain had called a special session of the legislature to correct the present banking—the banks ought to be able to stand the expense of a session, for it would have been called for no other purpose than for their protection. The banks were instrumental in making the holidays and they must continue for their safety. Of course the banks are not responsible for the creation of such a measure as is now in force, and very probably, whether are the interests that are affected by the holidays.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Perfectly disheartening, the way the American people refuse to be panicked.—San Francisco Call.
Secretary Taft is to hurry to Berlin, doubtless so that there may be a somewhere else.—Chicago News.

New York financiers are always asking the impossible. Here's John D. Crimmins calling for a "silent Roosevelt!"—Baltimore Sun.

Mr. Loeb may get back to Washington in time to find that he is to blame for several things that happened during his absence.—Washington Post.

Mayor Reyburn thinks President Roosevelt has belittled the nation. At all events, the responsibility cannot be put upon him for belittling Mayor Reyburn.—Philadelphia North American.

Who will undertake to dispute the philanthropy of the beef trust magnates in view of the fact that they have availed themselves of the scarcity of money to greatly reduce the prices of their products?—Philadelphia Record.

Will there be any tariff revision? Not while your Uncle Joe continues to act in the house in the capacities of "the cook and the captain bold and the mate of the Nancy brig, the bo'sun tight and the midshipmite and the crew of the captain's gig."—Louisville Courier Journal.

HOWE'S OBSERVATIONS.

Any fool can make friends, but only a wise man can keep them.

The average woman attaches a good deal of importance to a party invitation.

In our opinion, the man who smokes a cigar in a funeral procession lacks good taste.

We have noticed that men who are good story-tellers don't care much about hearing them.

The trouble with some people doing a good thing is that they waste the rest of their lives in admiring it.

Going to a lawyer with every trouble, in a man, is a bad as a woman going to a doctor with every trouble.

It is as hard for a woman who wears mourning to give satisfaction as it is for a man's kin to please his wife.

There are many people in the world of so little importance that they never become the subject of a telegraph message until they die.

There are two subjects of conversation that never fail a woman: One is the hired girl question, and the other is that her hair is coming out.

The man who smokes lives an unhappy life. His friends tell him he had better not smoke; doctors tell him he must not smoke; his wife says he "shan't" smoke.

A man can never own so many automobiles when he has grown rich that he will have as good a time as he had in his youth riding around with the grocer's boy.

Thanksgiving at Hillside.

Thanksgiving was observed in the old fashioned way at the Hillside Congregational church. There was the usual address by the pastor, Rev. Barber, special singing by the choir, a duet by Mr. Mickle and Miss Lena Loynes, a solo by Mrs. Barber, a selection read by Mr. Mickle and a Thanksgiving dinner in the church parlor in which forty-five members of the parish participated.

The afternoon was spent in visiting, story-telling and games by the children. One noticeable feature of the affair was that although the dinner was perfect and served in the best of style and condition not one woman was absent from the services which preceded it.

In the evening the young people and a few of the older ones gathered at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Clapshaw and spent the evening very pleasantly with music and games. The Hillside people are rejoicing over the location of some splendid families in our midst of late.

S. K. W. Scott Dead.

Word has been received here of the death of S. K. W. Scott at Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 26, with funeral services Thanksgiving day and interment in the Linwood cemetery of that city.

Mr. Scott was well known in this city having come here seven years ago, and left but last June for his eastern home. He was born in Circleville, Ohio, in 1843, and moved with his parents when a boy to Dubuque. Geo. W. Scott, his father, established a medical practice there and became one of the best known physicians in the city.

S. K. W. Scott graduated from the Cincinnati Medical college, but instead of practicing became a prominent railroad man in Dubuque until his health compelled him to give up the work. He was married to Miss Clara L. Estes of Philadelphia, who was a sister of Mrs. A. B. Thomas of this city. Mrs. Scott died several years ago.

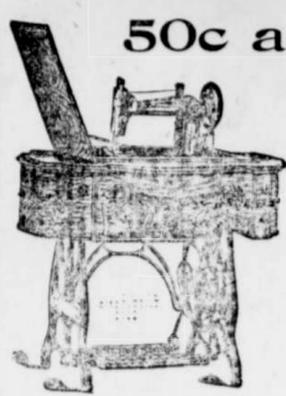

Mr. Scott leaves one child, Miss Elsie, who made her home with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Thomas for several years but is now in St. Paul going to school.

Birthday Party.

A very delightful surprise party was given in honor of M. S. Allen's birthday, Monday evening. Songs were sung and games played after which the guests sat down to a well decorated festive board in the midst of which was a platter fringed with decorative lighted candles, 46 of them representing Mr. Allen's age.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mills, Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Kori, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hoffman and Misses Reba

Pacific Wins from Albany.

Pacific University ran away with Albany college last Thursday afternoon when the lads from the latter institution were defeated in football by a score of 15 to 0 before the largest aggregation of bleachers that has gathered to witness football services this year.

The two teams are very evenly matched, more so than the score would indicate, and only dogged determination to win the last game of the season influenced the eagle of victory to perch upon the local standard. Rain fell during the whole of the matinee and the slippery slimy ball caused considerable fumbling on either side. In the first chapter the ball see-sawed back and forth in the center of the field until a streak of fortune came over the locals. Robinson, Humphreys, Ferrin and Gwynn ripped off some good chunks of yardage and the first touchdown was made. No goal.

In the second half a touchdown and goal and a place-kick were scored making the final 15 to 0. Ferrin's place-kick was the attraction of the game and elicited a tumultuous bunch of 'rah, 'rahs and screams from the lady bleachers.

Corl-Mills.

Miss Bessie Mills and Oliver Corl were married Monday at the Methodist parsonage in Hillsboro by Rev. Belknap. The wedding occurred at eleven o'clock and Mr. and Mrs. Corl departed on the noon train for a few days' visit in Portland.

Mrs. Corl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mills formerly of this place but now of Roy, while the groom is the son of City Treasurer L. J. Corl and is a partner with his father in the bicycle business. They have a nicely furnished house on Second avenue south, near A street, this city, where they will make their home. The News extends congratulations.

That decoy horse of Dan Parsons' has caused more questions, fears and tremblings than most any other animal in Washington county. Hi Clark, of course, has "sold" more people by it than toes on your two feet. One day he suggested to a horse enthusiast in this city that Dan Parsons had a beautiful horse for sale. "What horse is that?" anxiously questioned the equus bratter. "Why that dapple grey," retorted Hi and the fellow said "Come on they're on me," but then they remembered that this is a dry town. And again a couple of college students—they travel in pairs over there—were passing the harness shop and talking very animatedly. "Oh, I just dearly love horses," coyly ventured the coed, "and I'm not a bit afraid of them either." Scarcely had these words escaped her rosy lips when her steady shrieked "Look out or that horse will step on you," and the maiden was so frightened that she fell into his big strong arms for protection. "What did you say a moment ago about horses G endline?" "Oh be good George. That was a horse on me, and the treats, what will you have?" George looked her in the eyes for a minute and said, "Why, I'll take a date of course."

Charlie Hines who formerly lived with his parents in this city, was visiting here the first of the week.
