SENATOR E. W. HAINES SPEAKS

At Dr. Boggess' Request Mr. Haines Addresses Economics Class on Banking--Excellent Lecture.

State Senator E. W. Haines delivered an excellent address upon the subject of "Banking" to the Economics class Friday morning. After giving a brief history of banking Mr. Haines in a very lucid and forceful way showed the practical workings of a bank. The first bank we have any record of was established in the thirteenth century. In the early history of banking men could deposit money in the bank but could not withdraw it, but if he wished to pay a debt he could give the creditor a check on the bank for the amount and the same would be placed to the first creditor's credit. The banks of England and France were established about two hundred years ago. The bank of England was established largely for the benefit of the government. Mr. Haines then fully explained the true relation of the National, State and private banks. He pointed out the fallacy that the people had of the government being back of the National bank. The only thing that the government stands back of the National bank is the National bank note, which is permanently secured by government bonds. The National Banks of our country are required to make five statements a year in regard to their condition. Every six months the Comptroller of the currency sends an official to examine the banks' books and report the general condition of the bank to him. Senator Haines dwelt at some length on Oregon's new Banking law which places our state and private banks under the same rigid rules as our National Banks. The total amount of money deposited in the banks of the United States today reaches the sum of $13,000,000,000, while the total amount of actual coin is nearly $3,000,000,000. Mr. Haines said this fact alone showed how impossible it would be for the banks to meet the demands for cash if they were called upon by all the people at once. Ninety-seven per cent of the business today is done on paper, thus leaving three per cent where actual cash is used. Mr. Haines took an optimistic view of the present financial situation and urged the need of the general public to be considerate in its demands on the banks. The prosperous condition of the country does not point to hard times. The large products of our farms and factories discourage this belief.

NEW COURSE ESTABLISHED.

Professor Cook, of the Chemical Department, to Teach Mineralogy.

Not only did the opening of the fall term see a marked increase in our student body, the completion of Herrick Hall, and an improvement in our equipment in general, but also the addition of a number of new courses to our curriculum; the latest being Elementary and Determinate Mineralogy.

Prof. C. W. Cook, under whose instructions this course will be given, has spent several years of study on this subject in the university of Michigan, and is thoroughly prepared to make it both instructive and interesting.

The subject consists of two courses, the first of which will include the study of the elements of crystallography, physical and chemical properties, occurrences, uses and determination of the more common minerals. The second course must be preceded by course I and consists of the determination of minerals in the laboratory by means of their physical properties.

The equipment which arrived a short time ago from Germany, consists of about one hundred large glass models for lecture purposes and about the same number of wooden ones for use by the students.

Instruction in this department will no doubt be very useful and interesting to any one in the Scientific course and it is desired that a goodly number of students will elect this study next semester.

MEETINGS BY REV. FOLSOM

Large Attendance of Students--Song Services Conducted by Mr. Thomas.

The special meetings last week led by Rev. A. J. Folsom and Rev. Thomas were attended each evening by almost the entire student body beside a number of people from town. An earnest spirit pervaded each meeting and the students showed their deep interest by their faithful attendance.

Rev. Folsom chose as the subjects of his addresses those which are of vital importance to every young man and woman who wants to make life yield the best. His call was to service and consecration. He showed by many examples the power of the Christian life in bringing out what is best and noblest in the character. If the college student wants his life to count on the side of what is truest and noblest he can accomplish it in no way but by accepting Christ for his standard and living up to the high ideals of a Christian life. The need that the state and the nation has for strong Christian men and women was a point on which he put much stress.

Rev. Folsom is a strong earnest speaker and his words carry conviction. The musical part of the meetings led by Rev. Thomas was a strong feature. The large chorus gave a fine spirit to the singing. Mr. Thomas gave a beautiful message each evening in his solos.

The students feel a deep sense of gratitude for the work of Mr. Folsom and Mr. Thomas not only for the evening service but for the personal work done at the noon meetings and for the help and strength they have given to many seeking the Christian life.
