CAMPAIGNS AND CONVENTIONS

A formal declaration of party principles specified as the party platform was as unknown in the early days as was a convention. The noisiest, the jolliest, the most exciting and perhaps least logical presidential campaign was that of 1840. William Henry Harrison, hero of an Indian victory at Tippecanoe, a plain old man, who had lived, his opponents sneeringly said, in a log cabin decorated with coon skins and had drunk hard cider, was selected by Thurlow Weed as a better candidate than Henry Clay. To defeat Clay in the Republican convention, the unit rule was adopted. The issues between Van Buren, the Democratic candidate, and Harrison were not clearly drawn, but the adventurous circumstances of Harrison's early life were skillfully utilized for theatrical effects. "Old Tippecanoe" was the slogan. Processions, miles long, with log cabins, cider barrels and coon skin caps on poles, stretched from State to State. Glee clubs were a feature of the campaign and the Indian fighter was fairly sung into office.

So vigorously did the Whigs sing their favorite refrain that echoes of the songs still linger.

What has caused this great commotion—motion—motion—motion? It is the ball a rolling on. For Tippecanoe and Tyler, too. And with them we will beat little Van, Van, Van, is a used up man.

Farewell, dear Van, You're not our man To guard the ship. We'll try old Tip.

In the campaign which resulted in the election of Benjamin Harrison the fact that he was a grandson of old Tip was not forgotten by his adherents. Many slangy, even irreverent references were made to grandpa's hat as a fit subject for campaign quips. In 1844, the year when the Democratic convention brought the first dark horse into the running, the songs of the majority were:

O, poor Henry Clay, poor Henry Clay, You cannot be our President, for Polk is in the way.

Hurrah for Polk and annexation, Down with Clay and high taxation.

When John Hanks, cousin of Abraham Lincoln, carried two weather-beaten rails into the Wigwam—the structure especially built for the Republican convention held in Chicago, in May, 1860—Lincoln became the "rail splitter" candidate as Harrison had been the log cabin and Jackson the hickory candidate years before.

In the convention of 1860 began the modern custom of cheering and counter-cheering. The Seward contingent gave a parade the day of the convention. While they were marching Lincoln supporters filled the Wigwam. With the naming of the candidates began the cheering. When Seward was nominated and seconded the shouting was absolutely frantic, shrill and wild. But when Lincoln's nomination was seconded the West was heard from, and gave a scream that was positively awful, and accompanied it with stamping that made every plank and pillar in the building quiver. On the third ballot Lincoln was nominated. The shouting was so deafening that the cannon which was discharged on the roof of the building could not be heard inside.

Gray-Haired Man Remembers a Boy Who Tried It Forty Years Ago.
"Whenever I read in the newspapers that a boy has run away from home to fight Indians or seek some other sort of adventure, it takes me back forty years," said the gray-haired man in the club smoking room. "For I ran away from home once, just as I suppose every other youngster does, once at least, only in my case I wasn't seeking adventure, I was escaping tyranny. It seems foolish now, but it was all very real to me then. The tyranny consisted of the one fact that I got my first licking, and I guess there's no doubt that I deserved it. But I couldn't see it that way then; I was very bitter, and the one idea I had was to get away where life was free and tyrants were not.

"The impulse to depart on my travels was carried out so suddenly that I found myself wandering far away from the house before it dawned on me that I was ill provided for a journey. In fact I had gone just as I was, with the smart of my physical as well as my mental wrongs still acute.

"As I went I pondered over the matter of provisions, and the idea came to me that I would make my first stand in a cranberry bog right on the farm. With this as a headquarters I would make raids on neighboring orchards, and if the worst came to the worst I supposed the cranberries would support life.

"Well, I reached the cranberry bog presently and bivouacked. Here I should spend the first night under the friendly stars. I picked out a soft place for a bed and sat down to wait the coming of night.

"Now, cranberries are not very filling, especially in the raw, green state, but I managed to eat some of them. And then it began to get dark.

"Well, sir, the shadows fell quickly on the hills about me and the air grew chill. Fantastic monsters reared their horrid heads on every hand. The free life began to pall.

"So it won't surprise you to learn that a very little boy ran home crying before the supper things had been cleared away, and that he never ran away again."

more. They have restrictions of all kinds placed on the order of their daily lives, but they are used to it. Indeed, they have arrived at a sort of mental state in which they look to the authorities to tell them what to do, and how to do it, in every contingency. "Verboten!" is the German word that has the greatest vogue, so far as I was able to see. "Forbidden!" stares them in the face everywhere. They are regulated in all sorts of ways, down to the manner they shall conduct themselves in their houses. There is a certain time for leaving rugs, a certain time for playing the piano, a certain time for everything else. You can move your household goods only in a certain way. You cannot shake a dust rag out of the window. You cannot do this and you cannot do that, and they told me, after once you get accustomed to it, it is a comfortable way to live. It solves you from thought if you know what hours there are for doing your work and how you must do it. If a cab knocks you down in the street, you are arrested for obstructing the traffic. Your place is on the sidewalk.

Every Berliner does exactly what he is expected to do, and you must do the same. As an example of how well trained they are, they are not obliged to have guards on the underground trains in Berlin. The Berlin folks know they are expected to shut the doors, and they shut them. If you observe their regulations you are not disturbed, but if you violate one of them you instantly get into more kinds of trouble than you had imagined could exist. All you are expected to do is to walk a chalk-line, and you can be happy, if the regulations allow the kind of happiness that agrees with you.—Samuel G. Blythe in Everybody's.

GREAT INDIAN TRIBES OF THE UNITED STATES

W. A. Shelton

The Bannock.
One of the hardiest, bravest, and most difficult to handle among all the western tribes was the small but valorous band known as the Bannock, Bannak, or Panaiti. This little tribe, never numbering more than 700, has for many years inhabited the country between the Snake river and the mountains which mark the boundary between Montana and southern Idaho.

Of Shoshone race, but braver and more turbulent than any other Shoshone tribe, the Bannock fought the Blackfeet and drove them back when they came over the mountains, dominated tamer tribes of Idaho and Oregon, and made themselves general nuisances when the white man took the country.

The Bannock troubles culminated in 1878, when they broke out in open war, drawing many of the Plute and Shoshone along with them. After considerable fighting their young chief, Buffalo Horn, was killed by friendly Indian scouts, and the Bannock warriors surrendered.

All of the Bannock tribe, except a fragment at Lemhi, now make their home on the Fort Hall reservation. Some 500 of them still survive, but are slowly decreasing in numbers. They do not take kindly to civilization, but seem to have accepted the inevitable, and behave fairly well of recent years. The Bannock are very dark of face, and of medium stature, while their physique is wiry and sinewy, as might be expected with a fighting race, equally expert in horsemanship and mountain climbing.

A Lost Art Rediscovered.
In Science, Frank Della Torre announces his rediscovery of the famous Venetian varnish, which has been the despair of violin makers for nearly 200 years. Shortly after the discovery of America the gondolas of Venice were regularly coated with a transparent, lustrous, orange-red varnish. This flame colored material made everything beautiful upon which it was painted. After the Venetian city fathers decreed that all gondolas must be black the wonderful varnish was turned over to the violin makers. Some Italian furniture of the seventeenth century still extant is coated with it. When the violin makers had used up the supply on the last Cremonas, no more was to be had. Investigation led Mr. Torre to conclude that the raw materials of this varnish must have come from Africa, and he believes that he has at last found a gum varnish identical with that used by the Cremona makers. It looks like the old varnish and seems to have the same wonderful effect on violins covered by it.

Not Pleasant.

Order of the Golden Horseshoe.
How many persons have ever heard of the Order of the Golden Horseshoe, the first order founded in America?

In 1724, when Virginia extended from the Atlantic into the unknown West, few of her colonists had crossed the Blue Ridge or the Alleghenies. So full of dangers from savages and wild beasts and so full of natural difficulties was the passage of these terrible heights, that Governor Spotswood, setting out to discover a pass, looked on the expedition as so hazardous that he took with him a guard of "soldiers, gentlemen, and pioneers," armed and carrying provisions. These scaled the pass with great hardships and perils, and returned after the Governor had cut the name of King George in the rocks on the highest peak.

He then constituted the society, or order, of the Golden Horseshoe. Each man who had scaled this high pass was made a member of it, and to each one he presented a golden horseshoe. On the side was inscribed in Latin: "So it pleases him to cross mountains."

Any men thereafter who could prove that he had read with his own eyes the name of the King on the height was entitled to become a member of this order.

Devious Definitions.
Colic: The only thing that will tackle a baby without first considering the consequences.

Chimeras: The food of indolent theorists.

Humor: An anvil upon which to crack a smile.

Matrimony: The sea that swamps many a courtship.

Sympathy: A convenient thing for a silent partner.

Miser: One of the things that will keep in any climate.

Dude: The exorcism of insufferable conceit.

Incomplete Signals.
The ingenious Charleston News and Courier suggests that the new spring hats would gain in distinction if they sported a neat two-foot flagstaff.

And right away somebody will want to suggest a sign language for the flag in the hat.

Of course the flag at half mast might indicate that its owner was a widow, and a reversed flag would mean that the lady was in distress.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

POPULAR SCIENCE

Messrs. Palermo and Cingoloni, the inventors of "tachyol" (fluoride of silver), an antiseptic employed in surgery, have found that a solution of 1 part in 500,000 of water will destroy all germs, including bacillus subtilis, its germicidal effect being much greater than that of chlorine, bromine or ozone.

To lessen risk of loss of submarines, torpedoes used in naval practice and other objects liable to sink in the sea, a French oceanographer attaches a vessel of oil having a long and short time tube one-tenth of an inch in diameter. When submerged the oil rises from the seals of the tube, oil rises from the long one drop by drop, locating the sunken object by the film on the water's surface.

The German government more than a year ago imposed what seemed to be a moderate tax on railroad tickets. The result of it has been a diversion of travel from the higher to the lower classes, to such an extent that a decrease of about $2,500,000 in the passenger earnings of the Prussian state railroads alone is attributed to it. Nearly at the same time a new schedule of charges for passengers and baggage was introduced, which on the same railroads reduced earnings about $1,500,000. But this was expected.

Dr. H. C. Stevens, of Seattle, reports recent experiments which show that objects seen by indirect vision ordinarily appear larger in the right half of the field of vision than in the left. With a smaller number of persons this is reversed. From these facts he deduces a possible origin of right and left-handedness. Right-handedness, or its reverse, develops at about the age of seven months. Dr. Stevens suggests that they may be due to the phenomena of vision just described. By a reflex effect the infant reaches after the objects best seen with the arm nearest to them.

In his book on the great yeld of German East Africa, Herr C. G. Schilling gives a vivid description of the shimmering, undulating sea of light which bathes that country, causing light-colored objects often to appear black, and making distances so deceptive that when but a few hundred paces away it is sometimes impossible to distinguish a rhinoceros from an ostrich or a termite's nest. Water on this void is often the greatest of luxuries, "as precious as life itself, ever when obtained from small mud pools."

Yet the country, when viewed from hill tops or from tall trees, exhibits a wonderful panorama of wild life. Elephant there are not dependent upon grass but will strip trees of their bark or branches when hard pressed, and they are sometimes found in company with giraffes. In some of the small lakes, of the Kilimanjaro region hippopotam may be watched by a concealed observer at as close quarters as in a zoological park.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it is like a rubber band being stretched across the opening of the ear, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

S.S.S. CURES OLD SORES

No old sore can heal until the cause which produces it has been removed. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., may reduce the inflammation and assist in keeping the place clean, but cannot cure the trouble because they do not reach its source. Old sores exist because the blood is infected with impurities and poisons which are constantly being discharged into the place. The nerves, tissues and fibres of the flesh are kept in a state of irritation and disease by being daily fed with the germ-laden matter through the circulation, making it impossible for the sore to heal. S. S. S. cures chronic sores by its purifying action on the blood. It goes down into the circulation, and removes the poison-producing germs, impurities and morbid matters which are responsible for the failure of the place to heal. S. S. S. makes the blood pure, fresh and healthy; then as new, rich blood is carried to the spot the healing process begins, all discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, new tissue begins to form, the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh, and soon the sore is permanently cured. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, the safest and best blood purifier for young or old. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it is like a rubber band being stretched across the opening of the ear, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.
