

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

COUGHS AND THE NOSE.

Many Stubborn Cases Due to Trouble in Nasal Fossae.
There are people who have a stubborn cough which lasts for months and years and which the more rational treatment is unable to cure. This was the case with a woman, of whom M. Lermozoy, of Paris, recently reported his observations to the Societe Medicale des Hopitaux, and who coughed for seven years without anyone being able to cause this infirmity to disappear, until one day, after an examination of her nose, the ablation of polypoid curd it suddenly and definitely.

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. ARE LEARNING KALE.

Oregon Farmers Overcome Prejudice of Long Standing.

From the Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis.

Kale is one of the best talking crops in Oregon. When the Oregon booster wants to prove that Oregon is the best dairy state in the union he has to talk kale. Unless he knows what kale will do to the milk bucket he has not qualified as a booster. It is called the thousand-headed kale, and the botanist knows it as brassica oleracea, but it is the plain kale of four letters that does the talking. The strange thing is that it has only been during the last two or three years that it has had an audience, though it is nearly thirty years old in the Willamette valley. It has tried to talk all those years, but the people wouldn't listen when it sought recognition. "We never heard it talk," they insisted, "back in Iowa and New York. Back there cows produce milk without kale, and I guess they will have to here." That is tradition. It took thirty years for kale to get an audience in this state and live down tradition.

Tired of Play.

"Tired of play! Tired of play!"
What hast thou done this livelong day?
The birds are silent, and so is the bee;
The sun is creeping up steeply and true;
The doves have flown to the sheltering eaves.
And the stars are dark with the drooping leaves;
Twilight gathers and day is done—
How hast thou spent it, restless one?

"Playing?" but what hast thou done beside

To tell thy mother at eventide?
What promise of morn is left unbroken?
What kind words to thy playmates spoken?
Whom hast thou pitied, and whom forgiven?
How with thy faults has duty striven?
What hast thou learned by field and hill,
By greenwood path, and by singing lily?

There will come an eve to a longer day

That will find thee tired—but not of play!
And thou wilt lean, as thou leanest now,
With drooping limbs and aching brow,
And wish that the shadows would faster creep,
And long to go to thy quiet sleep.
Well were it then, if thine aching brow
Were as free from sin and shame as now!
Well for thee, if thy lip could tell
A tale like that of a day spent well.

If thine open hand hath relieved distress,

If thy pity hath sprung to wretchedness,
If thou hast forgiven the sore offense,
And humbled thy heart with penitence;
If nature's voices have spoken to thee
With her holy meanings eloquently;
If every creature hath won thy love,
From the creeping worm to the brooding dove;
If never a sad, low-spoken word
Hath plead with thy human heart unheard;
Then, when the night steals on, as now,
It will bring relief to thine aching brow,
And with joy and peace at the thought
Of rest,
Thou wilt sink to sleep on thy mother's breast.

Many Stubborn Cases Due to Trouble in Nasal Fossae.

There are people who have a stubborn cough which lasts for months and years and which the more rational treatment is unable to cure. This was the case with a woman, of whom M. Lermozoy, of Paris, recently reported his observations to the Societe Medicale des Hopitaux, and who coughed for seven years without anyone being able to cause this infirmity to disappear, until one day, after an examination of her nose, the ablation of polypoid curd it suddenly and definitely.

A cough with a nasal origin, therefore exists which may be more frequent than one is led to believe. It is, M. Lermozoy says, generally termed a nervous cough. This term is at the same time an error in diagnosis and ends to an insufficient treatment.

The nasal cough occurs when two morbid conditions are realized simultaneously; these are an exaggerated sensibility of the mucous membrane of the nose and a local cause of irritation. This local excitant may be either hay fever or a polypus in the nose.

Nasal coughs have certain characteristics which may serve to render them recognizable. They are dry, convulsive, progressive, irresistible.

What often deceives as to the cause of these fits of coughing is a banal subjective illusion. The sufferer from a nasal cough feels that it is caused by a pricking sensation in the larynx, and, on the contrary, notices no tickling in the nose.

A systematic examination of the nasal fossae of all people who cough is, therefore, necessary. Sometimes a large lesion is found in them, floating polypoid which irritates the mucous membrane; sometimes the latter seems normal, but at certain points cough-producing zones are found which are revealed by two complementary signs: production of the cough by the irritation of the said zones, suppression of the cough by the coaction of the zones.

The diagnosis of the nasal origin of a cough considerably attenuates its prognosis. This cough when not recognized continues almost indefinitely; when recognized it gives way almost always to a rational local treatment, and sometimes disappears with astonishing rapidity.

Thanks are due to M. Lermozoy for calling attention to the role, scarcely suspected until now, by which the mucous membrane of the nose plays in the persistence of certain coughs; and in case of need recourse will be had to the therapeutical means which this knowledge indicates.—Paris Edition of New York Herald.

"Pardon me, ma'am," answered the e. h., "but I am a man of honor and must therefore decline to desert from the army."

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

There is scarcely any one, no matter how vigorous and healthy, who does not need a tonic sometimes. Little physical irregularities upset the system, the appetite fails, digestion is poor, the body feels tired and worn out, and other unpleasant symptoms give warning that the system is disordered and needs assistance to ward off, perhaps, some serious sickness or ailment. S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the best of all tonics, nature's medicine, made entirely of healing, cleansing, invigorating roots and herbs, a systemic remedy without an equal. S. S. S. has the additional value of being the greatest of all blood purifiers. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, rids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling, improves the appetite and digestion, and brings about a return of health to those whose systems have been weakened or depleted. S. S. S. acts more promptly and pleasantly than any other medicine, and those who are run down in health should commence its use at once. It will thoroughly purify the blood and tone up the system. S. S. S. is admirably suited for a systemic remedy because it is free from minerals; it may be used without harmful results by persons of any age, and no unpleasant effects ever follow.
