Louis Wilcox of Seoggin's Valley, is one of the progressive farmers of this county who believes in modern improvements. He has recently placed on his farm a complete water works system. The system consists of a pneumatic tank with a capacity of 1000 gallons of water and a gasoline engine to pump the water. The engine pumps the water and the same amount of air into the tank which is kept under a pressure of from 60 to 100 pounds and which supplies water for all his buildings. The new water works were installed by Goff Bros. of this place and is giving the best of satisfaction.

Mr. Wilcox not only has the water for the stock but intends to have it in his new residence when he gets it built, which will give him all the conveniences of the city resident.
