THE MONARCH RANGE

Will Pay For Itself

Because—
It is Built RIGHT—of Malleable Iron and Steel

There are TWO distinct kinds of steel ranges, widely different, except in one respect—they both have steel bodies.

In the Monarch Range, unbreakable Malleable Iron is used for those parts that are cast or grey iron in all of the "common sort" of steel ranges.

The seams and joints are made by riveting the heavy steel plates of the body and oven to MALLEABLE Iron frames, making seams as solid as those of a steam boiler, that will remain TIGHT for unlimited years.

Such a method of construction is possible only when Malleable Iron is used, and it is largely this "air tightness" that enables the Monarch to do as much work as an ordinary steel range with but one-half the fuel.

It is by actually SAVING a large part of the money ordinarily spent for fuel and repairs that "The Monarch Pays for Itself."

It's easy to see HOW the Monarch pays for itself when you compare its Riveted Air-Tight Construction with the Make-Up of the Ordinary Steel Range!

The GREY iron in the COMMON sort of steel range is too BRITTLE to stand hammering necessary to rivet it to the steel.

So the joints are made with stove bolts and plastered with stove putty in an attempt to make them appear tight.

Because everyone knows that "air leaks" into the flues and firebox WASTE fuel—

And the range must seem to be tight—at least till it is sold. After a little use these seams open up—the expansion and contraction works the nuts loose—the heat warps the iron and steel apart—the putty dries up and falls out.

The range leaks air all over—it WASTES FUEL.

There is no fuel waste with a MONARCH Range. It utilizes ALL the energy in the fuel—uses about HALF what the other kind of a range requires.

Thus the saving in fuel alone pays the range's entire cost in a remarkably short time.

This "different" CONSTRUCTION effects not only a saving of FUEL, but of hard LABOR and much TIME as well.

There's no stove backing to be done—no black kettle bottoms to scour—no waiting for a slow fire to get the oven hot. Everything goes smoothly—without a hitch about a Monarch Range.

The satisfaction of using such a range is worth much to a housekeeper.

It's all due to the CONSTRUCTION.
