One Way To Boost.

Washington County has spent thousands of dollars for advertising and publicity purposes and yet there are no other sections of the state that are equally prosperous or have as many natural advantages, but what have been more extensively advertised and in that way won for themselves a wider reputation which has brought them a greater portion of eastern settlers and money for improvement and development.

There is no community in the state today that consistently and intelligently followed up publicity work but has found it to be money and effort well invested, which has brought in splendid returns, even in the matter of dollars and cents both to the community and the individual; and if we have erred in that particular it has been by a failure to do more of it.

Washington county has before her the opportunity for an investment that would not only prove a world wide advertisement and make it one of the central points of interest for the tourists of the Pacific coast, but would yield her property holders a handsome income on the original cost.

It is the universal opinion that this county is fitted by natural advantages to become, and the time is not far distant when it will become, one of the garden spots of the world. It is a surprise to every tourist that there is such a district so near Portland that is so little known. The fact that we are back from the main lines of travel, is, and always has been, a handicap to our development, and nothing would favor the advancement of this county more, than to furnish an attraction that would bring the tourists, who throng into Portland each year, on into this section.

An automobile road would bring about this most desirable result. It would soon become known as one of the leading attractions Portland had to offer, for no place in the world can show more fertile lands or magnificent scenery, both valley and mountain, as can be viewed in the brief length of time which would be taken up in an automobile trip from Portland to this City.

Numerous Portland business men have stated that they would live in Washington county were such a road provided. The custom has become almost universal for the business man of Portland to go to and from his place of business in an auto. The congested condition of the Portland streets makes this a nerve trying experience, while a trip out even as far as this City, would consume no more time, and would give them the freedom and enjoyment of a country run, and what is now a daily trail would become a pleasure instead. The excellent service of the electric lines would assure him of always being able to reach his business, should that mode of travel become necessary.

Many such men and their families would much prefer living in the country, and would gladly accept the opportunity of doing so. The addition of such a class of people would mean much to the community, while the increased value of property and the large addition to its income would be of great benefit to the county.

This would make Portland of easy access to the farmer or resident who used a team as a means of conveyance, and whenever a market is made easy of access, it is brought that much nearer, and the value of both land and crops increase in a comparative ratio.

The cost must first be looked into, but a careful consideration of this question has convinced the most conservative business men that the profit would far exceed the expenditure which would be paid in a few years, leaving it as a means of permanent income to the county. The fact that there are already several miles of rock road constructed, which could be put in excellent condition at small expense would very much lessen the cost of the entire undertaking.

The weakest of us break a promise.

Debt has a thousand doors, but few exits.

Love is a tonic that sharpens the appetite for more.

The fellow who is out for the dust has to be full of grit.

The chafing dish is the advance agent of the indigestion tablet.

Even when they have nothing to do, some people make a mess of it.

It seems to be a fight between the fight promoters and the fight preventers.

When poverty comes in at the door, love makes a sound like a flying machine.

A woman's husband sometimes causes her almost as much work as her dressmaker.

Those who are prepared for the worst are the ones who generally get the best of it.

An Indiana man wants a divorce because his wife chews tobacco. Finecut or plug?

Many a woman's idea of an aggravating husband is one who refuses to quarrel with her.

The trouble with the average man is that he seldom lives up to the opinion he has of himself.

It's all right to love your neighbor as you love yourself, if you can afford to be imposed upon.

Down in Alabama they sell whiskey in walking canes, and many are sticking to the booze habit.

The man who never does anything for his fellow man will not be missed when he shuffles off this mortal coil.

A Frenchman says he can understand the language of chickens. This will be a valuable accomplishment, if he can persuade the fowl to tell its age.

Last year there were 957,105 alien immigrants into the United States. This was not quite up to the high water mark of 1,100,135 in 1906, but it was more than double the number of arrivals in 1908.

The nation paid out $16,000,000 for tuberculosis last year. Fresh air comes high, but we must have it. No one has yet suggested a patrolman to go about smashing in all closed bed-room windows.

Woman in New Jersey, and not in a fairy tale, had a long lost brother who, the other day, came home rich. But notwithstanding these occasional bursts of verity, such occurrences still remain chiefly in the fairy tales.

Mars, according to an astronomical expert, has just finished a new canal. It is a pity we cannot establish that communication with the Martians so as to engage a few gangs and a choice lot of engineers to hurry up the Panama job.

A man is never prevented from rising in the world by the law of gravitation. Some men do not rise because they have not the means to buy an airship while others keep on terra firma for fear of meeting Halley's comet.—Ex.

The best way to keep up interest in the Commercial Club is to have plenty of work on hand for the members to do. City building means work and lots of it, and it is also a fascinating employment once real interest is aroused.—Ex.

The Cincinnati telephone exchange has a new arrangement by which a subscriber who begins to find fault with "Central" is at once switched to a sweet-voiced operator, called in the office terminology "Trouble," who asks him gently: "What's the matter?" It's a great thing for the Cincinnati folks to have somebody to tell their troubles to.

The man who has little faith in pure bred dairy cattle as winners ought surely to be convinced of his error in the sales of two notable herds of Jerseys in the Willamette valley a short time ago. Thirty-one cows in milk sold on an average of $290 each. One entire herd of jerseys, 75 in all, brought the owner about $17,000. The farmer who goes into the pure bred stock business and combines a little judgement with sticktoitiveness will win a competency.

The Norwalk (O.) Reflector well says: "Every line in a newspaper costs the proprietor something. If it is for the benefit of the individual it should be paid for. If the grocer were asked to contribute groceries to one abundantly able to pay for them he would refuse. The proprietor of a newspaper must pay for the free advertising if the beneficiary does not, but it is one of the hardest things to be learned by many that a newspaper has space to rent and must rent to live. To give away rent for anything less than living rates is as fatal to a newspaper as for the landlord to furnish rent free."

A Texas congressman eulogizing his state the other day said: "Gentlemen, believe me, if all the hogs raised in Texas in one year were made into one hog, it would dig the Panama Canal with three roots, and without a single grunt! If all the cattle raised in Texas in one year were made into one great steer, it could eat all the herbage on the continent at one mouthful, dislodge the stars in their heavenly firmament with its horns, and side swipe the auro borealis with its tail." And we would add that if all the liars were made into one that would tower so high he could shake the man in the moon by the hand, he couldn't tell a bigger lie than this one.

It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, when the doer of deeds could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred with sweat, dust and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error, and short coming; but who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best knows at the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory or defeat.—From Theodore Roosevelt's address in Paris.

The Evolution of Booster Bill

VI.—He Decides to Buy a Home

When Bill Blue had to buy of yore It made his tightwad spirit sore, So these times, be it understood, He made as seldom as he could.

His cash to no home merchant went. To a mail order house he sent. "These stores that we have here," said he, "Are robbers, but they can't rob me."

This made the local tradesmen blaze. They cried: "That rule will work both ways. IF BILL CUTS US, WHY, WE'LL CUT BILL Till of that game he has his fill." It jarred Bill some. He said: "By Jack! If I spend here it may COME BACK." His dollars now no longer roam, But "Bill the Booster" buys at home.
