"Windy Jim" Discourses

"Speakin' of dust" said "Windy Jim" as he transferred a large quantity of that commodity from his clothes to everything handy, "reminds me of a summer day out near Forest Grove wone't."

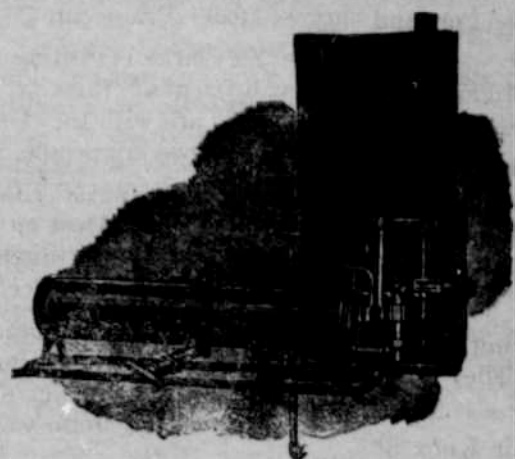

"Bill Jenkins an' me started out fer a buggy ride with a couple of gude lukin' gals an' the roads got kinda dusty an' then got dusty some more an' the dust was a flyin' around like a swarm of bees in the summer time an' then it begun te settle ferst on me an' then on Bill an' then on the gals till we awl looked alike an' then the horses ran away an' dumped us awl out an' when we got up we looked as much alike as beans and in the same pod."

"Well I got hold of my gal's arm an' prominades off te whar I lived te git sum of the dirt off an' the other couple goes off in the uther dereckshun an' I put me partner in the landlady's room while I went tew me own an' in 'bout three hours and 25 tubs of water I turned out ter find how me pardner was gittin' along when dern my whiskers (Windy never had any whiskers) ef thar wernt Bill Jenkins an' we were the most surprised couple of gents ye ever saw."

"We never heard nor saw of them gals agin but thet thar dust jist nacherally kept raisin' an' settlin' around thar till it raised dough enuff tew settle me back board bill an' Jenk's tailor bill an' a lot o' miner debts uf ourn."

"Then it raised all kinds uf eain an' bill put in a sorgum mill an' brom factory an' made moll-asses outen the sugar an' brums outen the rest an' finally bill, he settled down fer life an' I jist blowed."
