son, Oregon's greatest poet, have been published in book form under the title of "Gold Gated West". Simpson was one of those rare beings who are born to sing a country's sweetest songs, and the matchless melody of his poems will haunt and charm countless succeeding generations.
Dr. C. L. Large of this city, who was an intimate friend of Mr.
Simpson, was doubtless the first person in Washington county to order a copy of the lamented poet's works. Dr. Large's mother and her four sisters, daughters of Daniel D. Bayley, an Oregon pioneer of 1845, all knew Mr.
Simpson intimately from his earliest years, and it was his intention to compose a poem in compliment to "the Bayley girls", but he met accidental death before he accomplished it.Announcements of Candidates*For County JudgeI hereby announce myself as a
