Aerial Navies

Graham White declares that the next war will be won by airships, that two thousand of them could be built for what one battle ship costs. It is true that aerial navigation is advancing perhaps faster than any other science; the men birds are making longer and longer flights and carrying more and more weight. The first great trouble seems to be either in carrying enough fuel or in feeding the engine when in flight. But that can be improved upon' We have an idea that the greatest improvement would be in storage batteries, if they could only be lighter.

But looking ahead a litte, imagine two thousand air ships each carrying one bomb, taking their flight over a city, army or fleet and dropping their terrors. No one ship could hope to fire two thousand shots in a battle, and what would an army do if two thousand shells were to be dropped upon it in a single quarter of an hour?

It is whispered that when Germany made her demand for a naval station on the west coast of Africa, or in lieu of that a mighty tract of French Congo country, she really meant to fight if her demands were denied, but when she learned that France had so perfected aerial navigation as to overtop all other nations, Germany grew modest in her demands and seemed anxious to come to a peaceful settlement of the trouble which she had made. Certain it is that hence forth the nations, in measuring take into the count the navies of the air as well as those of the deep sea.

Where They Were Injured

Most any one can be an editor. All an editor has to do is to sit at 19. the desk six days in the week, four weeks in the month and twelve months in the year and ing. "edit" such stuff as this: "Mrs. Jones of Skunk Hollow let a can opener slip last week and cut her self in the pantry; A mischievous lad of Matherton threw a stone and struck a companion in the alley last Tuesday; John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch; While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise home from a church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square; Isaiah Trimmer of Lebanon was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda; Mr. White while harnessing a broncho last Saturday was kicked just south of the wood pile.

A moonlight night, a hammock, a shady spot and the right sort of a man is the average girl's idea of physical happiness.

The good-goodie man who is always rearing up on his hind feet and criticising women for peek-a-boo waists and low neck dresses is usually the very man who rubber necks to beat the dickens when the woman goes by.
