Journalism as a Study.

(From Seattle Post-Intelligencer)
No field of activity in these modern times offers broader opportunities for useful and helpful service than the field of journalism offers. Journalism is a big fact in modern life; sometimes it seems we do not really appreciate the power wielded by the press of the country; it is a power not always wisely used; it is not always used for the good it can do; but in the main the newspapers of America are clean in most respects and do more good than harm, and if that could be said of the average citizen it would probably satisfy the requirements of our imperfect civilization.

The establishment of a department of journalism in the University of Oregon, following similar and reasonably successful experiment in the University of Washington, and the assignment of Mr. Eric W. Allen, who for a number of years, has been connected with this newspaper, to the new chair in the Oregon university, shows that the people in this section of the country fully appreciate the power of the press and that they are anxious to realize the maximum of its power for good in modern society.

Mr. Allen is a young gentleman of fine capacity; he has had practical experience in newspaper making; his ideals are clean; he is keen to the opportunities of his new position, and it is certain that Oregon's leading educational institution will reap a fair profit as a result of his services.

ORENCO.

The first carload of trees for the fall shipment was sent out last Saturday by the Oregon Nursery Company. This is three days earlier than the shipping season of last year.

There are no vacant houses in town, and the only way to get a house to live in is to build. In the past three months six new houses have been built and the lumber is on the ground for two more.

The Presbyterian S. S. held its Rally Day exercises Sunday evening. The reading of the cradle roll brought out the fact that the population here is a cosmopolitan one, as nine different nationalities were represented.

Work of clearing the right of way for the line between the Oregon Electric and the United Railways, between Orenco and Helvetia is under way and will be pushed as rapidly as possible. When this branch is completed all freight on the electric lines from the south will go into the yards at Portland and Vancouver without being handled through the Jefferson street depot.

A petition for incorporating the town will be presented to the county court at the November meeting.

At the national apple show held the latter part of November at Spokane, Wash., the sweepstakes prize of $500 for the best car was won by Messrs. Knapp & Orcutt of Moscow, Ida., on a car of Wagons, which also won a first prize of $300 in its class; R. H. Wright of Chelan, Wash., won first and $300 on Spitzburgs, Winesaps and Ganos; Houston Bros. of Talent, Ore., a like prize on Newtown Pippins, and U. S. Simmons of Wenatchee, Wash., first on a mixed car.

An unprecedented and widespread epidemic of hog cholera has been causing thousands of hog raisers to market their stuff of late, whether ready for market or not, at prices that barely pay for the corn that has been fed them. However, if one feels that his drove will be reasonably safe from an attack of the disease and has growing shotes he can well afford to feed them and wait for a better market, which is bound to exist when the present flood of stuff being shipped is cleaned up.

An eastern firm at planting time last spring offered $50 for the heaviest yield of silage corn per acre, one condition of the contest being that a variety of corn they sold should be planted. The prize was won by a lady living in Lenawee county, Mich., who on one acre raised 70 tons and 800 pounds of fodder. The piece of land on which this was grown had been a hen yard and hog lot. The corn was drilled in seven inches apart in rows, a little phosphate was hoed in about the hills after the corn was up, and the patch was carefully cultivated.

North Carolina is carrying out a plan of good roads building that is not only deserving of the widest publicity, but of being copied in other states where the materials used are available. The type of road referred to is made of sand and clay, both of which materials are at hand. The highway is first given the convex shape by the use of the grader, so as to insure drainage, and where needed and possible the land immediately adjoining the road is drained. A layer of clay is then applied on the surface, and on top of this is spread a layer of sand, which gradually works into the clay and gives a firm and fairly durable roadbed. By using convict labor these sand-clay roads are built at a cost of about $250 per mile, while macadam roads cost about $5,000 per mile.

WELLS-BEMISS

Miss Julia Bemiss, formerly a resident of Forest Grove, was wedded to Mr. Newton Wells, at the home of her parents, about seven miles from Gaston, on Wednesday, Oct. 9th at 7:30 p. m. When the guests were all arranged in the wedding room, Mrs. J. L. Van Kirk, of Forest Grove, began to play the wedding march. Miss Ruth Bemiss, sister of the bride, opened the door and the bridal procession marched in. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Lois Bemiss as bridesmaid, and Mr. George Wells as best man. Miss Amy Bemiss was flower girl and Miss Fredericka Van Kirk, ring bearer. All were nicely in step with the music. The bridal couple marched across the room and took their place under a large white bell. The bride wore a beautiful dress of white silk mull. The room was decorated with mistletoe, green fern and autumn leaves. After the music stopped the minister stepped up before the bridal couple; they joined their right hands and the minister read the ceremony, after which, they each in turn, layed their right hand on the bible and answered, "I will." Miss Van Kirk then handed the ring to the groom, who placed it on the index finger of the bride's left hand. Then their friends shook hands with them and congratulated them. They received many valuable presents. Two flashlights were taken. The guests stayed until midnight. All enjoyed it very much. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Wells, Miss Lois Bemiss, Amy Bemiss, Miss Fredricka Van Kirk, Rev. C. A. Buriss, officiating minister, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bemiss, Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Wells, Mrs. J. L. Van Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. W. Allen, G. B. Allen, B. E. Allen, Miss Mary Yoeder, Mrs. J. P. Cooper, Mrs. F. C. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Oakes, L. B. Dixon, L. D. Oakes Jr., Charley Taylor and J. R. Hall.

A bunch of young people went to shivaree Mr. and Mrs. Wells one evening this week. They shivareed at Bemiss' for a while when Mr. Bemiss told them that Mr. and Mrs. Wells were not there. The shivareers stayed around the Bemiss home for about half an hour and then went home very much disappointed. The "newlyweds" were visiting the nearest neighbor.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Wells, "newlyweds," will leave for a "green cheese" hunt on a honeymoon, Nov. 1.

Mrs. L. D. Oakes and L. D. Oakes Jr. went to Portland, Oct. 19, and will be gone for some time.

The Mt. Richmond farmers are digging potatoes and getting in their winter wood. They are waiting for it to rain before they start to do their fall plowing.
